Quick Clicks B. Greenspan disagreed with the Facebook jeer of ABC's American Crime in the April 6 issue. "I give a cheer to any broadcast drama that takes on weighty subjects like this show does," Greenspan wrote. "It has a talented cast and excellent, understated writing that isn't dumbed down for the audience. Viewers who think the show is a bummer might want to stick to a lighter programming diet."...Diane Mitchell liked our recent chart in the same issue on the various streaming services available on the market. "I am still attached to my cable but contemplating a separation," she wrote. "Your chart helped me figure out where to go when I do finally get over my cable addiction. Thank you!"

THE SECRET LIFE OF MARILYN MONROE Lifetime's two-part biopic (airing May 30 and 31) documents Norma Jeane Mortenson's tumultuous life, from her childhood to her untimely death. Kelli Garner (standing) plays the movie icon; Susan Sarandon is her mentally ill mother, Gladys; and Jeffrey Dean Morgan portrays Marilyn's second husband, Joe DiMaggio. "It's a mother-daughter story," executive producer Keri Selig says, "a way of looking at Marilyn through a brand-new lens." Says Garner: "I took the role for the challenge and adventure. I wanted to find the balance between impersonation, interpretation, and my truth."

NURSE JACKIE Emmy winner Tony Shalhoub (with Betty Gilpin, left, and star Edie Falco) scrubs in on the Showtime comedy's May 10 episode as Dr. Bernard Prince. The kindhearted healer—and selfie shooter, here celebrating a save in the May 17 installment—replaces Coop (Peter Facinelli, who's leaving the show) and could be just what the doctor ordered for our troubled heroine: a real friend.

LAW & ORDER: SVU It's old-home week at the 16th Precinct as Captain Cragen (Dann Florek, left) and attorney Bayard Ellis (Andre Braugher) return on the May 6 episode of the NBC drama. Ellis defends a man who might have been wrongly convicted 17 years ago; Cragen worked the case. "There is some mutual respect between them," executive producer Warren Leight says. "Each knows the other has paid his dues."

THE ODD COUPLE

What It Takes to Save a Show

BY MICHAEL SCHNEIDER

Fans of ABC's Cristela, NBC's The Mysteries of Laura, and Fox's The Following have reason to worry. As the broadcast networks determine their schedules for next season, those shows, among others, are on the bubble—industry speak for the limbo where “they’re not a complete failure but not a clear success,” explains one network executive. The networks announce their 2015–2016 lineups in mid-May, and, according to one studio head, “Every person in my job is doing everything they can to salvage their shows.”

Some series have already been renewed, and the fate of many is easy to predict (see chart on page 7). “Most show-runners have a sense if they’re coming back,” says veteran executive producer Bill Lawrence, who’s confident his NBC comedy Undateable will return. (Here’s why: The network heavily promotes it, approved a live episode for May 5, and doesn’t have many other comedies to renew.) “The real bubble shows are the ones that have been flat-out told, ‘We don’t know yet.’”

For those series that could go either way, network executives will look at ratings data to try to find more potential viewers. (That includes predicting if some time-shifted DVR and VOD watching can be converted to live viewing, which advertisers prefer.) They’ll also review the show’s creative direction and consider if future plot points might attract new audiences. And they’ll look at the quality of their new pilots to decide if it’s safer to launch an untested series or stick with a low-rated established one. “You have the capacity to launch only so many new shows,” says the network exec.

Most important, key financial considerations determine whether a network keeps a middling series in play. If the network’s sister studio owns the show, executives could face pressure from corporate bosses to save it. If the series is nearing syndication (which brings in millions of dollars) or is a hit internationally, a studio may be willing to shave a few hundred thousand dollars off the fee the network pays to license it. A studio unaffiliated with the network may even trade partial ownership in the show for an additional season. Sometimes a sponsor comes in to help reduce costs (as Subway did when the sandwich shop rescued NBC’s Chuck from cancellation in 2009). Still, the studio head says, “financials work only if you believe in the quality of a show”—and are confident it has the creative steam to generate enough episodes (around 100) for syndication. “Otherwise, you’re far better off letting a show be canceled after a second season.”

Lawrence is blunt about the reality of being on the bubble. “If you’re a show that is super expensive, owned by a studio not connected to the network, and you don’t have a passionate core fan base, you’re not really a bubble show,” he says. “You’re done.”

But there’s always room for at least one bubble show to pop back onto the schedule—or be picked up by another network, as was the case with Lawrence’s Scrubs and Cougar Town. Another point to give show-runners hope: Says the network exec, “Nobody goes into the scheduling discussion saying, ‘We have too much good stuff.’”

Will Bruce Jenner Tell All?

Diane Sawyer previews her exclusive sit-down.

For months, the world has watched as 1976 Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner grew his hair long, donned earrings, polished his nails, divorced his wife, and appeared to be transitioning to life as a woman. The question then became which media outlet would score the reveal with the 65-year-old father of 10 (which includes his Kardashian stepchildren).

ABC's Diane Sawyer won the honor; her two-hour special Bruce Jenner—The Interview (Friday, April 24, 9/8c) features discussions with Jenner and members of his clan. "This is a really compelling conversation about so many things, a broad look at life," Sawyer tells us in an exclusive interview. "It's about family and how we all live our lives."

Sawyer, who would not use the word transgender in advance of the airing, says that she conducted several sit-downs with Jenner on both the east and west coasts, revisiting places that were meaningful to him. The former ABC World News anchor, who is now contributing long-form specials to the network, characterizes Jenner as "someone at a very strong place in life." We'd expect nothing less from a gold medalist. —Ileane Rudolph

Executive Discussion

Top producers shared their secrets at our WonderCon panel.

They are the creative minds behind some of the funniest, scariest, and most twisted TV shows today. On April 4, TV GUIDE MAGAZINE welcomed an array of prolific executive producers—(below, from left) Dan Harmon (Community), Adam F. Goldberg (The Goldbergs), Graeme Manson (Orphan Black), Alex Hirsch (Gravity Falls), Peter Horton (American Odyssey), Kerry Ehrin (Bates Motel), and Brannon Braga (Salem)—to our annual Fan Favorites Showrunners panel at WonderCon in Anaheim.

The panelists shared their insights on the sacrifices it takes to successfully lead a program. “The schedule is so severe and the stakes are high,” Harmon said. “A showrunner is someone who has paid their dues or lucked out greatly and is now in charge of 250 people.” Hirsch noted that the job is so time-intensive that he spends many nights sleeping on his office couch. “You’re like the president—and the janitor,” he said. “You are in charge of everything, and you can choose how much you delegate, but for everything that doesn’t get done, it’s still your name on the show.”

When asked about the challenge to constantly surprise viewers, the producers all said they get the most network notes for the same subject matter: sex. “It has to be sexual to be surprising and taboo,” Manson said. “Standards and Practices says two thrusts, not three.” For his comedy, Goldberg has received an unusual network request regarding filming leading man Jeff Garlin in his robe and skivvies. “I’m not allowed to show Jeff’s jiggling balls,” he said with a laugh. “We’ve had to CG out his jiggle in his tightie-whities, and it’s cost thousands of dollars.”

Ultimately, it’s the showrunner’s belief in the material that allows him or her to push boundaries while also pleasing corporate bosses. “You have to play chicken with them,” said Hirsch, who once fought with Disney over a reference to Spin the Bottle on Gravity Falls. “Eventually they’ll get so sick of your annoying, arrogant emails, and you get away with it.” —Rob Moynihan

“It’s the best job in the world,” Horton said. “To have an idea, write it down, actors act it—there’s just not a whole lot that’s better.”

GOTHAM EXCLUSIVES!

GOTHAMITES GET GOOFY Robin Lord Taylor, Ben McKenzie, and Cory Michael Smith were in a lighthearted mood at WonderCon, joking around in this exclusive photo. But at the show’s panel, executive producer John Stephens revealed that Penguin and the Riddler won’t be the only bad guys irking Det. Jim Gordon in Season 2: “Clayface and Mad Hatter are both villains we’re going to bring in.” (Also, do not miss the April 20 episode, when a shocking revelation about a major baddie is revealed!)

IT FIGURES Jim Gordon once declared, “Everyone has a Cobblepot.” Now that can include fans of the Fox drama: Diamond Select Toys will debut its new line of Gotham action figures at this summer’s Comic-Con International in San Diego. The collection features seven-inch versions of Ben McKenzie’s Gordon, Robin Lord Taylor’s Oswald Cobblepot/Penguin, and Camren Bicondova’s Selina Kyle/future Catwoman. All three figures come with character-specific play sets: an alleyway for Gordon, a pier for Cobblepot, and a fire escape for Kyle.

“We’re doing a line with no Batman,” says Diamond Select’s president and lead product manager, Chuck Terceira. “We’ll make a Bruce Wayne, but the show’s magic is that its heroes are the civilian or villain characters who have always surrounded Batman.” We’re already waiting with bated breath for a Fish Mooney we can call our own!

—Damian Holbrook

The list price for the figures, available this fall, is $24.99 each. Go to comicshoplocator.com to find retailers.

WHAT I DO

Mousoulides (with Winnick) has training in emotional intelligence and neurolinguistics.

Poll Mousoulides, Dialect Coach

"SPEAKING OLD NORSE is definitely a challenge," says Vikings' Kathryn Winnick, who plays warrior Lagertha on the A&E drama. Luckily, Poll Mousoulides is on set to help the cast nail what Winnick calls "the guttural and primal" ancient tongue. Mousoulides, whose TV résumé includes Reign and The Tudors, tells us how it's done. —Ileane Rudolph (with additional reporting by Kate Hahn)

Are the characters really speaking the ancient languages Old Norse and Anglo-Saxon? We use linguistic historians around the world to make sure we're authentic. There is enormous documentation about Anglo-Saxon; it's the root of many of the words that we use in English today. We know that Old Norse is very close to Old Icelandic. The Parisian [characters'] language, Old Low Franconian, is based on words collected from old psalms and poems. It's the first time the language has been heard in 1,000 years.

How do you work with the actors? The historians translate [writer and executive producer] Michael Hirst's lines and send them to me, sometimes with audio, sometimes without. I print them out for the actors and then spend time making sure they're comfortable speaking them. We give them up to a week to learn the lines, and there are no last-minute rewrites!

How are they doing? We've gotten very good feedback from experts who say it's wonderful to hear an ancient language come alive.

Which actors have the best ear for ancient languages? My favorite scene was when Athelstan [George Blagden] had to translate between Anglo-Saxon-speaking King Ecbert [Linus Roache] and the Old Norse-speaking Lagertha [Winnick], who fancied each other. It was very complicated and intricate, but the three of them did really well!

Thanks to recent successful reboots of 24, The Odd Couple, and Arrested Development (which is expected to return a second time), more studios and networks are diving into the remake business (even the Teletubbies are coming back!). Here's a look at some of the upcoming blasts from the past. —Rob Moynihan

Coach ORIGINAL PREMISE Hayden Fox (Craig T. Nelson) splits his time coaching a college football team and building a relationship with his daughter. HOW LONG GONE 17 years; the sitcom ran on ABC from 1989 to 1997. NEW IDEA NBC has ordered 13 episodes, in which Fox is coaxed out of retirement to help his son start a football team at an Ivy League school. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Some critics might view this comeback as a creative Hail Mary, but it should appeal to baby boomers, sports fans, and folks mourning Zeek, Nelson's Parenthood patriarch.

Heroes ORIGINAL PREMISE Ordinary people with extraordinary abilities rally to save a cheerleader and, in turn, the world. HOW LONG GONE Five years; the sci-fi drama ran on NBC from 2006 to 2010. NEW IDEA NBC has ordered the 13-episode miniseries Heroes Reborn for next fall. Stars Jack Coleman, Masi Oka, and Jimmy Jean-Louis will return; new faces will include Chuck vet Zachary Levi. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Tenacious superfans who lent their signatures to countless online Save Our Show petitions; wannabe world-savers.

The Muppet Show ORIGINAL PREMISE Jim Henson's furry creatures perform in a weekly variety show featuring song, dance, comedy, and celebrity cameos. HOW LONG GONE 34 years; the show ran in syndication from 1976 to 1981. NEW IDEA The Big Bang Theory cocreator Bill Prady is penning a pilot that has Kermit, Fozzie, Gonzo, and the gang pitching a Muppet Show revival to ABC executives. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Adults and kids. The Muppets are one of the few franchises to successfully cross generations (see the recent success of the 2011 movie The Muppets), so it's definitely time to get things started.

The X-Files ORIGINAL PREMISE Two FBI agents, believer Fox Mulder (David Duchovny) and skeptic Dana Scully (Gillian Anderson), investigate paranormal phenomena. HOW LONG GONE 12 years; the supernatural drama ran on Fox from 1993 to 2002. NEW IDEA The truth is still out there as Duchovny and Anderson reunite with creator Chris Carter for a six-episode event series on Fox that begins production this summer. Agent Skinner and the Cigarette Smoking Man will also likely return. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Fans who were disappointed by the 2008 feature film The X-Files: I Want to Believe and are craving another bizarre adventure.

Twin Peaks ORIGINAL PREMISE FBI Agent Dale Cooper (Kyle MacLachlan) travels to a quirky Washington town to find out who killed high school student Laura Palmer.

HOW LONG GONE 23 years; the drama aired on ABC from 1990 to 1991.

NEW IDEA A nine-episode Showtime run was announced in October and MacLachlan confirmed he's onboard, but a salary dispute with cocreator David Lynch has put the project in jeopardy. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Audiences left scratching their heads at Fire Walk With Me, the 1992 wrap-up film, and those addicted to more recent mystery series like Lost can revisit the one that started it all.

Mr. Show With Bob and David

ORIGINAL PREMISE Future Saul Goodman Bob Odenkirk and future Tobias Funke David Cross headline the sketch-comedy series. HOW LONG GONE 16 years; it aired on HBO from 1995 to 1998. NEW IDEA Netflix is reuniting the two and their writers for more silly and subversive bits in With Bob and David. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Who knows? Thanks to their now-high-profile TV careers (Odenkirk says he's found a new legion of followers in Breaking Bad), it could be the perfect time for their culty comedy to cross into the mainstream.

Full House ORIGINAL PREMISE A single dad enlists his brother-in-law and best friend to help raise his three girls. HOW LONG GONE 19 years; the family sitcom ran on ABC from 1987 to 1995. NEW IDEA Netflix is considering a revival called Fuller House, centering on oldest daughter D.J. (Candace Cameron Buré) and her BFF, Kimmy (Andrea Barber). Original stars Bob Saget, John Stamos, and Dave Coulier are expected to make appearances. WHO WILL WATCH NOW Millennials who still tune in to Nick at Nite reruns. Have mercy!

CHEERS & JEERS

CHEERS TO LATE NIGHT WITH SETH MEYERS

for scoring a killer plus-one. The talk show's delicious bit featuring Game of Thrones' Jon Snow (Kit Harington, above) as the worst dinner-party guest ever was yet another reminder that House Meyers is worth every week-night's watch.

CHEERS TO LAST WEEK TONIGHT'S JOHN OLIVER

for nyet neutrality. In Russia to talk with Edward Snowden, Oliver was as hard on U.S. surveillance as he was on the exiled whistle-blower, whom he cleverly asked to explain NSA programs in terms of whether they had access to d--k pics.

CHEERS TO CHICAGO FIRE AND CHICAGO P.D.

for teaming up on an explosive back-door pilot for a hospital-centric spinoff. It was an excellent storyline with heart-stopping heroics... and a great intro to Chicago Med. —Melanie Ley

FACEBOOK CHEER

95% OF FACEBOOK FANS CHEER IT

JEERS TO SHAMELESS'S SAMMI

(Emily Bergl, right) for making a bad situation even worse. Ian and Mickey's season-finale breakup was dramatic and painful enough. We really did not need Ian's crazy-pants half-sister to crash their somber goodbye with guns a-blazin'. Please let her suffer a fatal ricochet over the summer!

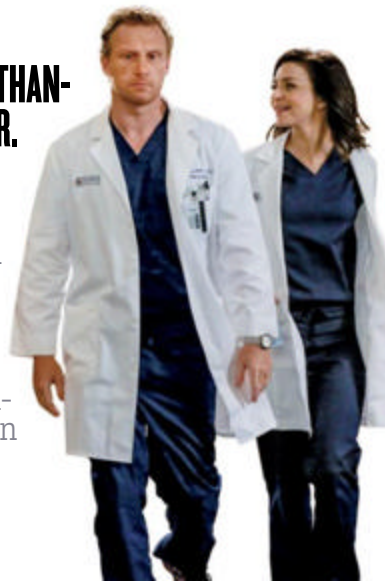

JEERS TO NEW GIRL

for being the same old, same old. After four seasons, Jess (Zoey Deschanel) still has no social skills and, in the words of Fawn (Zoe Lister-Jones, above right, with Deschanel), "the confidence of a child raised in a basement." Time to grow up, Girl.

JEERS TO GREY'S ANATOMY'S LESS-THAN-SMOOTH OPERATOR.

Did Owen (Kevin McKidd) really think he could hide his fling with Amelia (Caterina Scorsone) from Meredith? Secrets last about as long as most patients at Grey Sloan Memorial, buddy!

A Tale of Two Epics

Swept away by amazing stories.

OUTLANDER, Saturdays, 9/8c, Starz

GAME OF THRONES, Sundays, 9/8c, HBO

Read any great shows lately? Even for those who haven't picked up the fabulous (and weighty) page-turners on which the spectacular Game of Thrones and Outlander are based, these series remind us that few escapes are more satisfying than the immersive pleasure of losing oneself in a sweeping saga of fantastic adventure set in exotic worlds.

In the fifth season of Thrones, which conflates the bloated yet engrossing fourth and fifth volumes of George R.R. Martin's A Song of Ice and Fire novels, the thrill is somewhat tempered by a geographic and narrative sprawl so daunting that no single episode can service all of the show's fascinating people and locales.

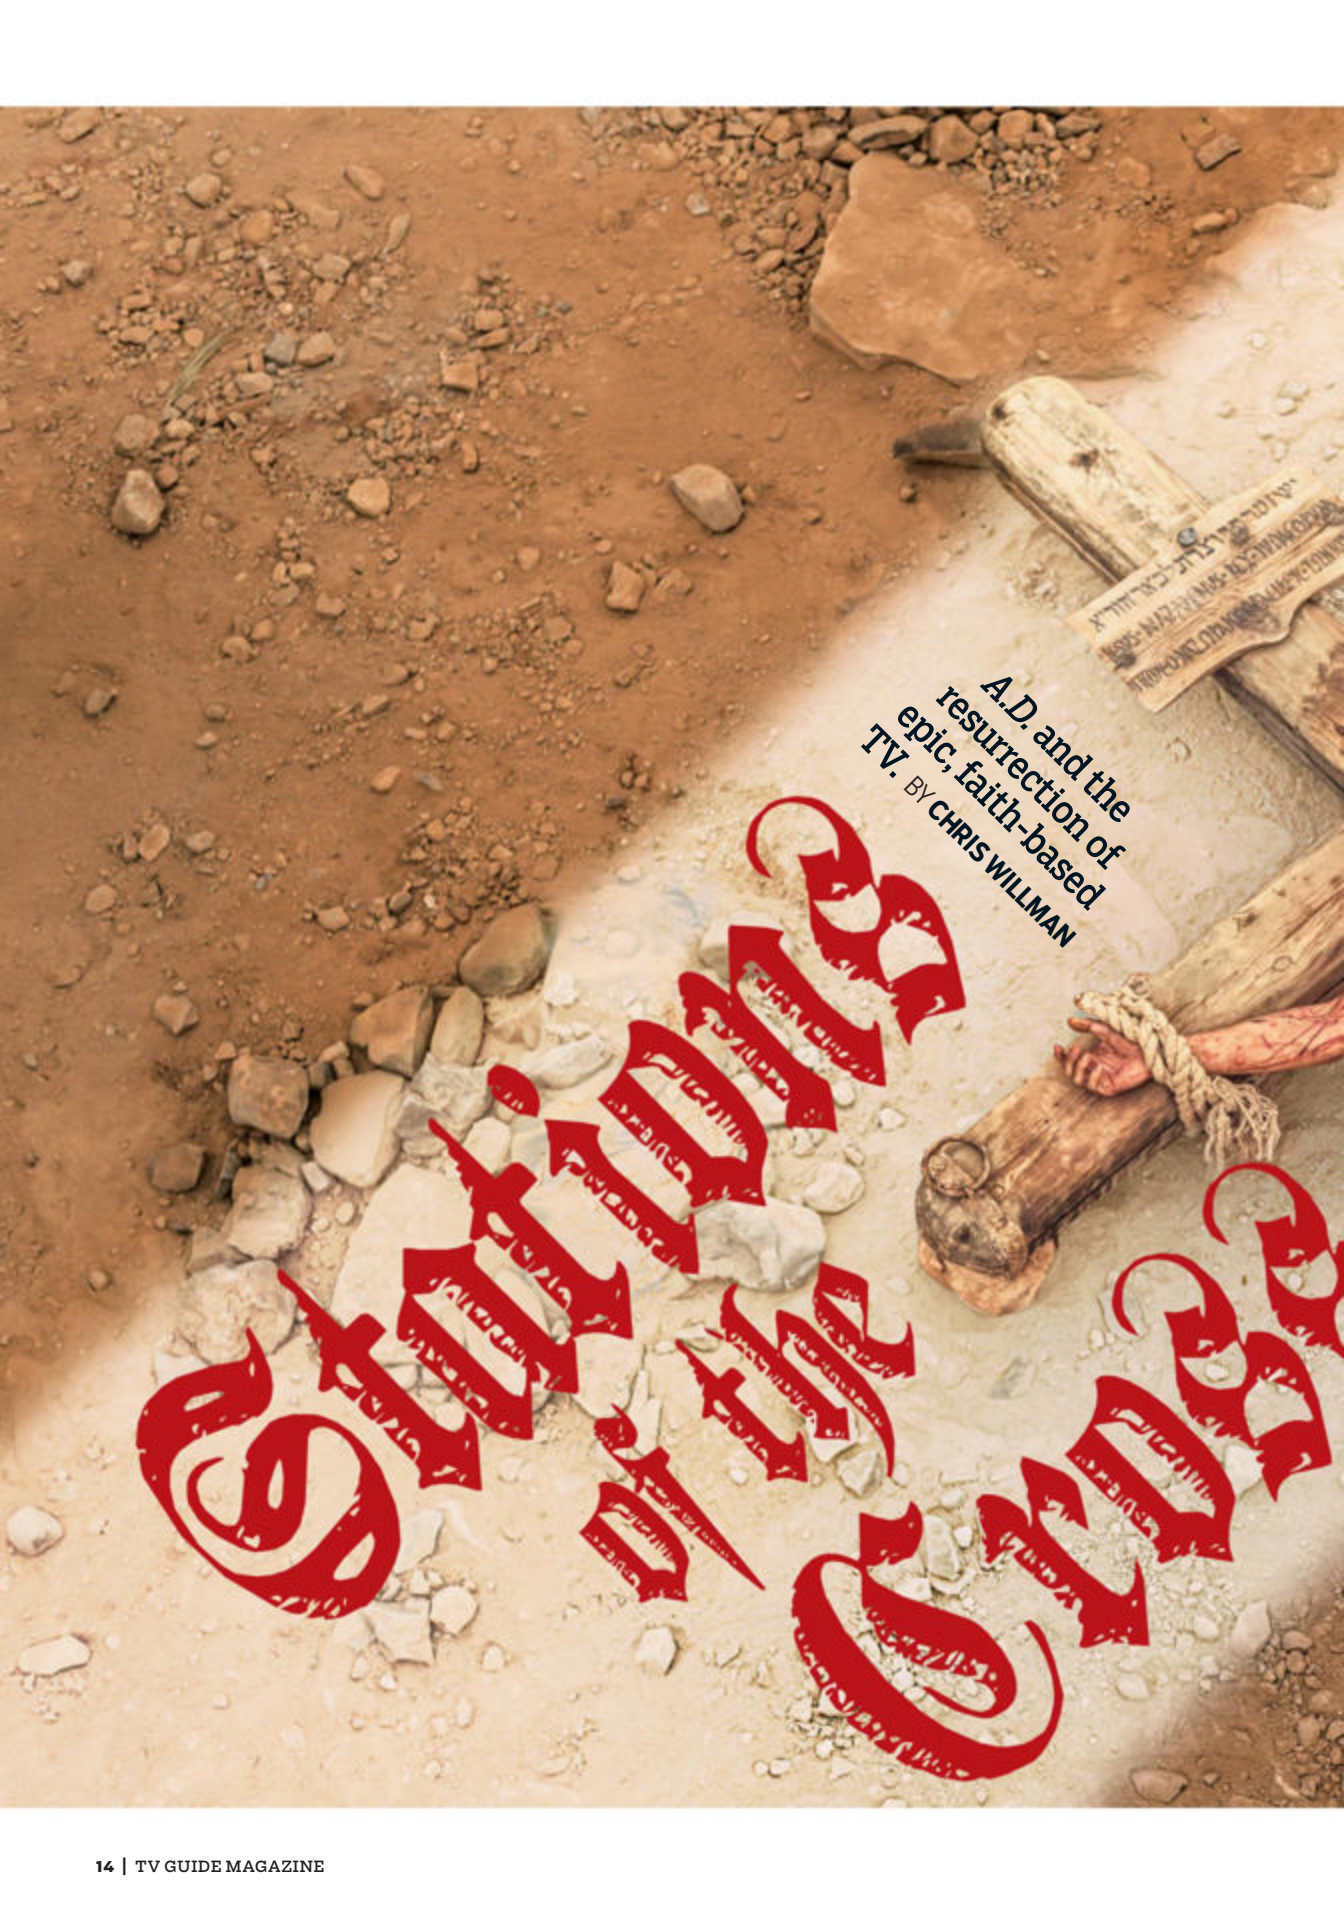

By speeding up and simplifying the action, HBO's Thrones has begun to improve dramatically on its source material, clarifying the theme of power and its perilous responsibilities in a time when, as noble warrior Brienne (Gwendoline Christie) puts it, "The good lords are dead and the rest are monsters." No one is immune from making tough, treacherous choices: scheming Cersei (Lena Headey) in Kings Landing, dragon-loving Daenerys (Emilia Clarke) in Meereen, and earnest Jon Snow (Kit Harington), who contends with warring factions upon the icy Wall. It's a lot to digest but well worth the effort.

Happily, the freshman season of Outlander (adapted from Diana Gabaldon's historical romantic fantasies) is still in its blissful honeymoon period, quite literally, and is tightly focused on the steamy and passionate relationship of 18th-century Scot Jamie Fraser (Sam Heughan) and his outspoken time-traveling bride, Claire (Caitriona Balfe), from 20th-century England. "I'm not the meek or obedient type," Claire understates, because when these fugitives aren't ducking or fighting Redcoats, they're engaged in a ferociously entertaining battle of wills—often leading to makeup sex that could fog your windows.

A.D. and the resurrection of epic, faith-based
TV. BY CHRIS WILLMAN

In A.D.'s first episode, Jesus (Juan Pablo Di Pace) suffers at Golgotha.

IT'S THE GREATEST story ever told...and told...and told again. "Hollywood," says Craig Detweiler, a professor of communication at Pepperdine University, "is constantly forgetting and then remembering this character who is revered and studied by hundreds of millions of people on a weekly basis." Leave it to Jesus, who went momentarily unrecognized by Mary Magdalene after the Resurrection, to be hiding in plain sight—at least as far as the entertainment industry's attentions are concerned.

But executives don't have ADD about the Bible anymore—they've got A.D. The Bible Continues, plus a batch of others besides. Even veteran viewers of Good Book-to-boob tube adaptations have never witnessed a wave of biblically based television and movies quite like the tsunami of Scripture TV descending on screens like so much white foam over an Egyptian army. You could see it as an ongoing response to the record-breaking box office of Mel Gibson's 2004 The Passion of the Christ ($612 million worldwide) or just a cyclical reiteration of how every third generation needs its own King of Kings or Ben-Hur. Maybe it's even a sign that spirituality is blossoming in Hollywood's executive boardrooms. (Insert holy laughter here.) But heathens and believers suddenly have more 2,000-year-old entertainment choices than you can shake a study Bible at.

Most have been one-offs, but NBC's A.D. has the legs and plotlines to last well past Ascension Day. Attracting 9.5 million viewers in its Easter debut and handily winning the night, the series is scheduled for a 12-week run—and producers Mark Burnett and Roma Downey hope it will score a second season. (If you saw the first-episode spoiler that had Jesus telling Peter, "One day you will die for me," rest assured the show's creators will be putting off the fulfillment of that Easter egg for as long as possible.) Religio-historical dramas aren't just for basic cable anymore, not after Burnett and Downey's The Bible premiered to 13.1 million viewers on the History channel in 2013.

For evangelicals, A.D. is the draw of the season, although other religious constituencies have also been addressed. The slightly skeptical had the National Geographic Channel's Killing Jesus. For the somewhat more skeptical: CNN's alliterative documentary Finding Jesus: Faith, Fact, Forgery. Then there was CBS's The Dovekeepers, Downey and Burnett's fictionalized drama set at the first-century fortress of Masada, in which its comely leads got to know one another in the biblical sense.

Eight from A.D. (clockwise from far left): George Georgiou as Boaz; Morgan Watkins as Drusus, Vincent Regan as Pontius Pilate, and Will Thorp as Cornelius; Babou Alieu Cee-say as John; Jodhi May as Leah; and Johannes Haukur Johannesson as Thomas and Reece Ritchie as Stephen.

A similar boom is evident in cinemas, with Burnett and Downey having successfully re-edited The Bible into the 138-minute 2014 feature Son of God. “The fact that Christians went to theaters and watched a repackaged version just because they wanted to make a statement is a sign of how desperate they are to see their values affirmed,” says Mark Joseph, a Christian producer and marketing consultant, about Son of God’s $68 million worldwide gross. Last year also saw a pair of fanciful Old Testament movies in Noah and Exodus: Gods and Kings, although their disappointing returns may be indicative of what happens when auteurs tick off the faithful. It remains to be seen whether churchgoers will feel wooed or shooed by an adaptation of Anne Rice’s controversial Christ the Lord: Out of Egypt that’s in postproduction or by the movie about the New Testament’s most celebrated convert, Paul, that’s just been announced with Hugh Jackman, Ben Affleck, and Matt Damon producing. Meanwhile, the redoubtable Burnett and Downey are behind a big-screen Ben-Hur remake that’s currently in production (see interview on page 22). Looking for a smart investment in 2015? You might want to consider the toga and tunic industries.

A.D. focuses on the apostles’ ministries after Christ’s resurrection and ascension—although you may notice a lot more foot chases, villainy, and bloodletting than the author of the Book of Acts ever transcribed. If the series does get extra-biblical, however, conservative Christians trust Burnett and Downey as two of their own. Last year, in promoting Exodus: Gods and Kings, star Christian Bale described his Moses as “likely schizophrenic.” No worries about any such heresy with this duo at the helm.

driven by creative people who want to put their own spin on stories.” As a creative professional himself, Cooke understands that impulse, adding, “If I were shooting a classic fairy tale, I would want to bring something new to telling that story. And since many of these filmmakers aren’t believers, they look at these Bible stories the same way I’d look at a fairy tale.”

Author and radio host Eric Metaxas, a celebrated figure in evangelicalism since writing a best-selling biography of German Christian hero Dietrich Bonhoeffer, concurs.

“Mark and Roma bring a much-longed-for respect to biblical narratives, one that’s been sorely lacking in recent decades,” he says, adding that exhibiting perceived contempt for your core audience will never fly. “[Martin] Scorsese’s unintentionally hilarious The Last Temptation of Christ, with Willem Dafoe as a mealy-mouthed pseudo-savior, was the first of these fiascos. A.D. is proving the magnitude of the audience interested in a serious treatment of biblical subjects.” His enthusiasm has been echoed in positive notices from the presidents of the National Religious Broadcasters, Focus on the Family, and the Southern Baptist Convention, among others.

Although Killing Jesus didn’t get nearly the same endorsements, the three-hour drama made a killing (sorry) for National Geographic; with 3.7 million viewers, the premiere boasted the network’s largest audience to date. The big bow came in spite of brickbats from such conservative Christian outlets as Movieguide.com, which warned that the TV movie offered “a Jesus who’s not divine, who performs no miracles, and who’s full of doubt,” before concluding, “We suggest viewers skip watching Killing Jesus and watch A.D. instead.” One person who’s been involved in marketing religious projects to Christians (and prefers not to be identified because nearly everyone in evangelical media circles ends up working together at some point) posits that Bill O’Reilly, an executive producer and coauthor of the source book, “essentially did a secular version of Jesus’s story, and the only reason it didn’t get organized protests is because he’s on Fox News. A lot of Christian viewers like his political views but can’t figure out his faith.”

Getting pegged as the open-minded person’s guide to Christ was fine by Nat Geo, which wanted to play Killing Jesus as religiously nonpartisan. “This is a story that has been told trillions of times,” says Heather Moran, the network’s executive vice president of programming and

Phil Cooke, an evangelical writer and producer of the upcoming Christian-music movie Hillsong: Let Hope Rise, defends the traditionalist approach. “There’s no question that Hollywood is getting the message that the more biblically accurate the movie or TV series, the greater the audience,” he says. “Mark and Roma are proving that. The great challenge is that movie studios and TV networks aren’t Christian organizations. They’re

BY INGELA RATLEDGE

► JUAN PABLO DI PACE

HAILS FROM Argentina WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE TNT's Dallas and the Mamma Mia! movie HE PLAYS Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Although he logged most of his screen time in the first two episodes, it's not exactly a spoiler to reveal that Jesus's spirit will persevere throughout the series. "In an indirect way, my character is alive all the time because the others are always talking about his message," says Di Pace. YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH He'll have an encore performance in Episode 8, when Jesus appears to—and ultimately converts—Saul, who's been busy persecuting the disciples. "Jesus will have a little tougher edge there than we've seen before—he's essentially telling Saul off," says Di Pace. "I wanted to make him incredibly realistic and as close to human as possible."

▼ CHIPO CHUNG

HAILS FROM Zimbabwe WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HER BEFORE Camelot SHE PLAYS Mary Magdalene, the most famous female disciple and the first one Jesus presented himself to after the Resurrection. "Mary's steadfastness makes her the backbone of the organization," Chung says. As for her less-than-pious rep? "She's been portrayed many times throughout the ages as a prostitute—which is completely untrue and not biblically accurate!" YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH After helping the apostles settle into an ad hoc commune in Jerusalem, Mary will switch gears in Episode 7 and go undercover among the Romans as a servant in Pilate's palace. "She's basically there to spy—and convert women into the Church," Chung says. "It's a very threatening environment, and she finds her power by following Jesus's teachings."

ADAM LEVY

HAILS FROM England WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE Gladiator and the HBO series Rome HE PLAYS Peter, the humble fisherman from Galilee who was handpicked by Jesus to lead the disciples and protect them from capture by reigning political powerhouses Caiaphas and Pilate. "It's a huge undertaking for an illiterate working man," says Levy. YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH Although Peter initially struggles to understand why he was chosen for such a lofty role, his ability to speak directly to God—oh yeah, and work miracles—helps him rise to the occasion. "When he starts to find his voice, Peter becomes a great leader," Levy says. "Three thousand people converted on the spot during one of his speeches!"

BABOU ALIEU CEESAY

HAILS FROM Gambia WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE The British films Severance and '71 HE PLAYS John, "the beloved disciple," right hand to Peter. "John's earned his title because of his kindness, forgiveness, and humility," Ceesay says. YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH As the only disciple to actually witness the Crucifixion, John has added incentive to preach the good word. "Seeing Jesus suffer left an everlasting mark on him," Ceesay says. "On one level, it created a great stillness in him. On another, he was risking his life by being there—so he has surrendered himself to whatever fate the Lord has in mind, and that will become apparent at critical moments."

RICHARD COYLE

HAILS FROM England WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE The British series Coupling HE PLAYS Caiaphas, high priest of the Temple of Jerusalem, chief defender of the Jewish nation—and who is depicted as the mastermind behind Jesus's execution. "Caiaphas is in a pope-like position of immense power," Coyle says. "He's a man of faith, ego, cunning, and impulse." YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH "Being a religious man in politics is something that Caiaphas doesn't always handle well," says Coyle. "As Jerusalem descends into chaos in the days and months after the Crucifixion, Caiaphas's psyche descends along with it."

VINCENT REGAN

HAILS FROM Wales WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE E!'s The Royals and 300 HE PLAYS Pilate, the ambitious, paranoid Roman governor who was persuaded by Caiaphas to order the death of Jesus. Now he's determined to shut down further threats posed by Christianity. "He has climbed so high politically that he'll do whatever is necessary to maintain his position," says Regan. YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH Keeping the status quo will be risky business. "Due to heightened security fears, Pilate rarely ventures out of his palace confines," Regan says. Too bad for him, then, that danger lurks in his own bed: His wife, Claudia (Joanne Whalley), is having recurring dreams about JC. "She's Pilate's biggest ally and his biggest adversary," says Regan. "He's deeply in her thrall."

EMMETT J. SCANLAN

HAILS FROM Ireland WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HIM BEFORE Guardians of the Galaxy and Charlie Casanova HE PLAYS Saul, a zealous advocate for the old Jewish Temple laws and traditions of the Torah—that is, initially. "He starts his journey trying to put down and belittle the followers of Jesus," Scanlan says. "When that doesn't work, he uses force and violence." YE GOTTA HAVE FAITH While on the road to Damascus, Saul has an eye-opening experience that turns him into a believer of Christ. Once he's seen the proverbial light, he channels his considerable fervor toward his newfound religion. "He feels the word of God must be heard," Scanlan says, "and he'll destroy anyone who gets in his way."

strategy. “By stripping away what was most familiar to so many, it [became] such a powerful story. That was a very conscious choice of ours, to keep those details open to interpretation so different viewers with different perspectives could come to this historical spine of a story and use it as a jumping-off point for what they personally might bring to the table.” In the end, Killing Jesus split the difference between faith-based and secular audiences—leaving any resurrection off screen but still showing an empty tomb—and for all the publicized emphasis on outside history and scholarship, it took many of its events and dialogue straight from the gospels.

A.D. gave us a majestically backlit warrior-angel rolling away the stone, while the dustier Killing Jesus preferred to let the mystery be. What the two have in common is how they essentially play out as political thrillers, not spiritual reveries. In the days of such Cecil B. DeMille biblical epics as 1949’s Samson and Delilah, the joke (and maybe reality) was that churchgoers ostensibly came for the piety but stuck around for the chance to see sinful temptresses in skimpy outfits. The modern analogy is in how much these new projects make the religious aspects somewhat secondary to the machinations of the bad guys. None has gone quite as far as the musical Jesus Christ Superstar, which had the temerity to bump Judas up to colead. But Pontius Pilate is almost always going to wind up being a more fun character to depict than a Messiah whose most famous cryptic aphorisms aren’t about to get a dialogue polish.

If you’re a Christian tired of seeing the Messiah alternately portrayed as a stiff, saintly victim or (occasionally) tortured neurotic, you might consider the historical taboo on filmic portrayals of Muhammad and develop a slight case of Muslim envy. Back in the CinemaScope era, Christ arguably made a greater impression as a cameo player in Ben-Hur, showing up just long enough to have the hem of his garment touched, than he did in the whole of The Greatest Story Ever Told. So part of the canniness of A.D.—not to get too irreverent about it—is that the series kills off this dramatically risky and unwieldy character before the first commercial break and doesn’t even let Jesus stick around past the second hour, so as not to get in the way of all the bloodshed, Lady Macbeth-style conniving, and disciples-on-the-run action that make it more of a diverting potboiler than a Sunday-school lesson.

The Old Testament doesn't present as great a risk in adaptation as do Jesus's red-letter words. But filmmakers can still run into danger—as demonstrated by Exodus: Gods and Kings director (and Killing Jesus executive producer) Ridley Scott's divisive decision to portray God as a petulant boy and Darren Aronofsky's infamous rock monsters in Noah. "In order for a biblical epic to be financially successful, you need the evangelical audience to become engaged," says Matthew Paul Turner, author of Our Great Big American God and a leading figure in the progressive Christian movement. "But evangelicals are nitpicky about the details of their Bible stories, often carrying the persona of 'protectors' of God's stories. That's why Noah infuriated many of them, because rather than being able to sit back and enjoy a creative expression loosely based on Genesis, they squirmed at every turn away from how the Bible portrays the Great Flood." There is a mainline church audience that isn't hung up on absolute biblical literalism, says Turner, who believes "progressive Christians mostly just want to see a well-told story, one that doesn't overplay the torture of Jesus for dramatic effect and one in which Jesus isn't a hot white guy."

The emphasis on bloodshed in most of these adaptations doesn't sit well with some mainline Christians—not even when it's Jesus's blood. "In journalism, the standard is 'If it bleeds, it leads,' and I think it's the same in these sensationalist film depictions of Christ," says Rev. Kathy Cooper-Ledesma, pastor of Hollywood United Methodist Church, which has many constituents from the entertainment industry. "They're all about the substitutionary-atonement theory, focusing on violence and guilt and the belief that God required a blood sacrifice. That's not the God I believe in at all. The greater story we celebrate is the love of God, but these TV shows don't consider that dramatic enough."

And then there are believers who just think other TV shows are better at illustrating the Bible than, say, The Bible. "I'm far more intrigued by the spiritual, ethical, and moral questions raised by Orphan Black or Sons of Anarchy," says Cathleen Falsani, author of The Dude Abides: The Gospel According to the Coen Brothers, "than I am interested in another film interpretation of a biblical story that may or may not have a hidden religious or political agenda."

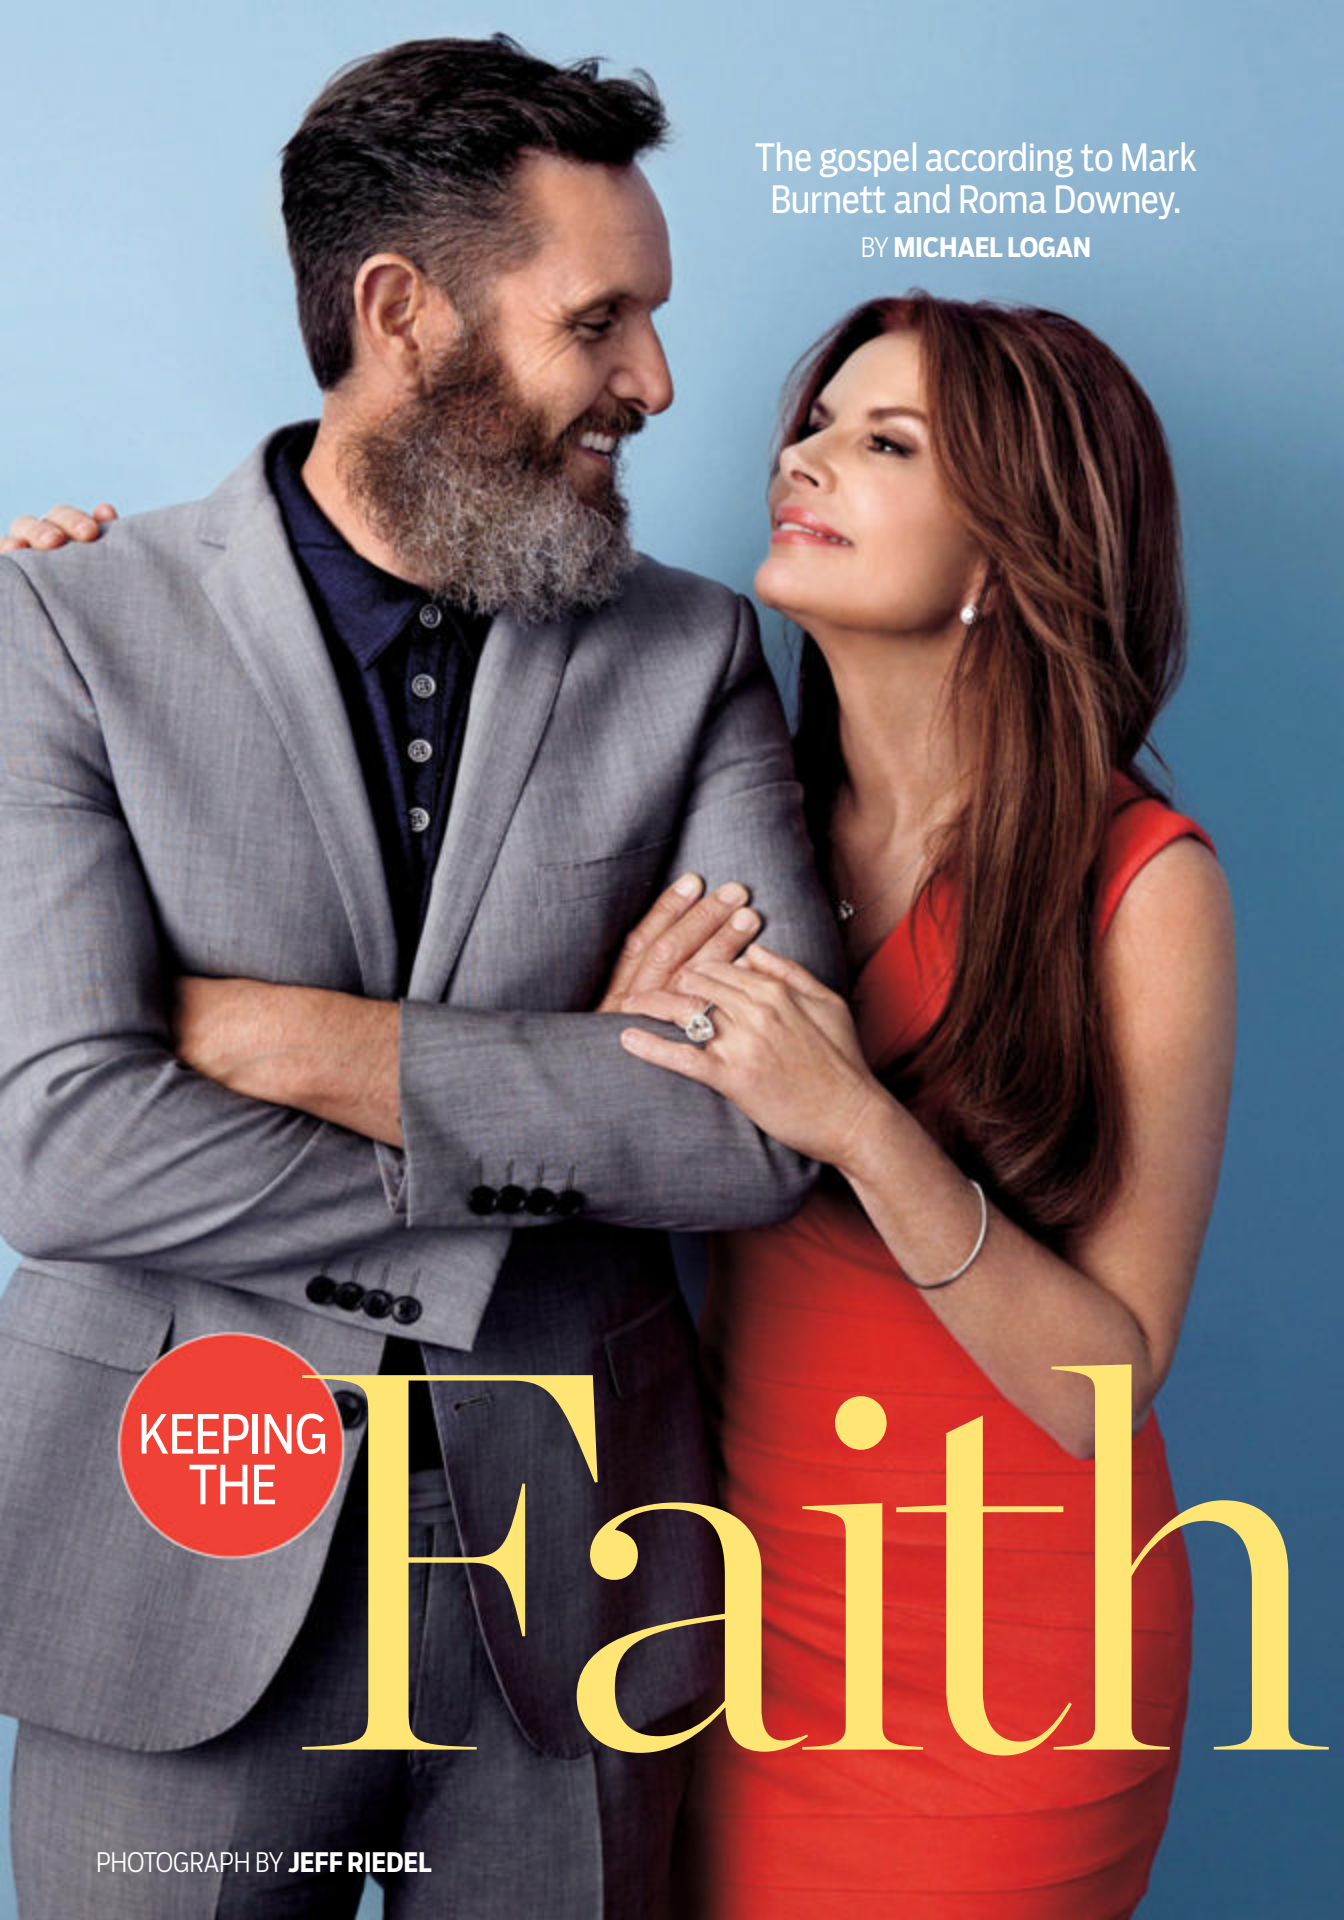

A.D., as it goes along, will inevitably delve more into the realm of pure speculation, as accounts of the disciples' post-Pentecost lives get harder to divine from the sketchy scriptural narratives. And based on the good will that Burnett and Downey have already built up in conservative Christian circles, they'll probably get away with making up more of the details. But in one early scene in A.D., before Jesus leaves the building, you get a glimpse of what could have been in a straightforward Christ-tale telling. Jesus, popping up at his followers' hideout, at first spooks them with his ability to forgo niceties such as entering through doors. And then, with a big grin, he asks, "Is there any food?" That's a Jesus we could still stand to see more of on screen, even after all these tellings: one who is as in touch with his human side—and not even in a tortured way—as his followers are hungry for divine revelations.

THEY ANSWER TO a much higher power than Hollywood. A.D. executive producers Mark Burnett and Roma Downey—who wooed 100 million viewers worldwide with their History miniseries The Bible—just wrapped Unveiled, a pilot for NBC about guardian angels, and their faith-based World War II saga Little Boy will open in theaters April 24. Now they’re jetting back and forth to Rome for their feature-film remake of the great Christ tale Ben-Hur, produced in partnership with MGM and Paramount. How does this deeply religious duo, who wed in 2007, stay true to both God and the showbiz moneylenders? We found out.

Despite countless dramatic depictions of Christ’s crucifixion and resurrection, A.D. is the first to really explore the decades that followed. Why, after 2,000 years, is this still fresh territory?

Downey: It’s extraordinary, isn’t it? Especially when we know, as believers, that this is just the beginning of the story. One man inspired 12 disciples and they, in record time, brought Rome to its knees. Now there are more than 2 billion Christians in the world. I don’t know why people haven’t seen the drama in that, but we have! It’s riveting.

Burnett: It’s so easy to sum up the years after the Resurrection with: “And then Christianity spread.” But the story of how that happened is magnificent and miraculous and a fantastic time of change for the world.

Downey: You have to remember that the disciples and Mother Mary and Pontius Pilate and the high priest Caiaphas didn’t know they were in the Bible. They don’t know the outcome, so there’s an excitement and intimacy and immediacy to everything that’s going on.

Burnett: And we want to keep coming back every Easter Sunday with more. It would take us 10 seasons just to get from the first persecution of Christians to the Emperor Constantine [under whom Rome began its transformation to Christianity]. So much incredible stuff! We’re already preparing scripts for Season 2.

At this point, do you get any resistance from Hollywood when pitching religious projects?

Burnett: There’s a brand value with Roma and me, just like when you trust certain airlines and hotel chains. The networks and studios know they’re safe with us, and that’s important because it’s very perilous terrain when you go down the Bible road. Look at Noah, with Russell Crowe, and Exodus, with Christian Bale. Both were made by brilliant directors and major movie studios and were very expensive—and neither did well. They would have made money if they stuck to the story.

So even if a religious film has some merit—and Noah and Exodus certainly did—it will be snubbed by the faithful if it veers from the Bible in any way? That seems like a punishing judgment right out of the Old Testament.

Burnett: This is an audience that knows the Bible really well and will reject anything that changes the word of God. They want it authentic. We want it authentic. But you know what? I would feel the same about Shakespeare. Would you change Romeo and Juliet so that the two kids lived at the end? Of course not.

But you’ve created many scenes in A.D. that aren’t in the Bible. How is that OK?

Burnett: We have certain mandatory checkpoints we must honor. For example, we know that Peter denies Christ three times and runs away. But the Bible doesn’t say when Peter ran into John and Mary Magdalene again or what happened when he did. We created that scene and play it as true as we can, running it past church leaders, theologians, and major academics to make sure it resonates.

Downey: The Book is always better, but we’ve done everything we can to take a deeper dive into it and make it relevant. We left for Morocco to film A.D. with a serious charge from our three children. They said, “Do not make this corny. It has to be cool.”

A.D.* is pretty much star-free. There was no pressure from NBC to cast name talent?

Burnett: None at all. Hollywood did that for years with its biblical movies, often quite laughably. Seeing John Wayne play the centurion at Christ’s cross in The Greatest Story Ever Told is one of the all-time comedic moments. You don’t need that. The Bible is bigger than any star.

Downey: As a girl, I spent so many rainy Sunday afternoons in my hometown of Derry in Northern Ireland watching the old religious films on TV—The Robe, The Ten Commandments, King of Kings—and even though I was swept up in the miracles, I knew something was off. Everybody looked like they’d just stepped out of the dry cleaners! These stories need grit.

Speaking of miracles, how do you manage to stay happily married and work together? Most couples would kill each other.

Burnett: I can see how it could go wrong. [Laughs] Horribly wrong.

Downey: Even the people closest to us can’t believe it. My women friends are like, “Roma, what are you thinking? We can’t even hang wallpaper with our husbands!”

Burnett: There are hundreds of potential points of conflict in what we do—choices on casting, scripts, shooting, editing. It’s endless. But Roma is a very wise woman who always says, “Between stimulus and response, there is a space.” And we stay in that space as long as necessary.

Downey: Working on these projects has deepened our faith, our marriage, and our friendship. But we’re human. We have disagreements. And sometimes I just have to leave it on the desk, walk away, and go make dinner, because the work is never more important than family and marriage.

Roma, does this mean you’re even OK with Mark’s beard?

Downey: Oh, not at all! I am so over that thing.

Burnett: She’s really been on my case about it.

Downey: It keeps getting bigger and wilder by the minute, but he loves it. [Laughs] I think he’s secretly trying to audition for a role in our next biblical epic.

THEY'VE BATTLED A raging forest fire to rescue lost hikers. They've confronted a dangerous arms dealer aboard a cruise ship. They've even supervised an international summit to prevent World War III. Now the members of Team Scorpion must rally for their most difficult mission yet: preventing their own demise.

High above California's San Fernando Valley, on a winding access road that snakes along the north edge of Los Angeles' Griffith Park, a cavalry of fake news vans and emergency rescue vehicles surrounds one particularly sharp hairpin turn. Jet-black skid marks and a broken guardrail signal a terrifying car accident. "We've heard screeching, we might have seen a coyote jump in the middle of the road, and our leader is in peril," says Ari Stidham, who plays Scorpion's quirky numbers cruncher, Sylvester Dodd. "Walter [Elyes Gabel] has turned his new Ferrari very quickly and 'Tokyo drifted' into the darkness."

It's a literal cliffhanger that sets the scene for the Season 1 finale of CBS's hit procedural. A rift has formed within the ragtag group of geniuses, and their frustrated leader—armed with an IQ of 197 and a shiny new sports car—has embarked on a reckless joyride to blow off steam. Instead, he finds himself dangling precipitously off the side of Mulholland Drive. "Walter O'Brien is the man who's always saving everybody," says executive producer Nick Santora. "We wanted to turn it around and see the team come together in this emotional way to save this person they care so much about."

That means reassembling the squad's key players, beginning with Special Agent Cabe Gallo (Robert Patrick). Cabe and Walter met when Walter was a young boy in Ireland who hacked into NASA's computer system. After partnering with Cabe and the FBI for years on a number of classified projects, 16-year-old Walter learned that software he developed for humanitarian purposes was used to bomb innocent civilians in Iraq. He cut ties with Cabe; the agent re-recruited the genius as an adult. "This whole season has been about redemption for Cabe," says Patrick. "Cabe puts country first, so he sees how valuable Walter's brain is and what an important asset he is to the U.S. government."

The strong father-son relationship between the two was tested in the April 13 episode when Cabe admitted to Walter that he knew about the government's plans in Baghdad three days before the mission commenced. That betrayal—and the ensuing confrontation—led to Cabe's resignation from Team Scorpion. "There comes a time in every young man's life when he has to tell his old man to f--- off, figuratively or literally," Patrick says. "That's part of becoming a man, and Walter is trying to find his own self and establish himself as the leader of this team."

Walter also has to come to terms with the departure of Paige Dineen (Katharine McPhee), the team's nongenius and the one who helps them relate to regular people. Paige is concerned about the negative influence Team Scorpion is having on her young gifted son, Ralph (Riley B. Smith), who has started hacking computers and was last seen facing imminent danger after getting stuck in Walter's lab. "Her son has been emulating Walter more and more, and it leaves her terrified," says executive producer Nicholas Wootton. So Paige decides to follow Ralph's baseball-player dad to Maine. "Against her emotional wishes—the tugging of her heart for Walter and the team—she's going to make this move," Wootton says.

Walter and Paige's will-they-or-won't-they relationship has been a driving force for Season 1 and a way for the brainiac to tap into his rarely utilized sentiments. "He has an incredible range of emotions," Gabel says. "He just doesn't know how to articulate them." Viewers will have to wait to see if anything romantic develops between the two. "I don't see it happening soon," McPhee says, "because Walter gets confused about feelings versus intellectual logic. The professional line [he refuses to cross with her] is also very confusing, and you can definitely see that she's disappointed."

One on-screen romance that has come to some fruition is the increasing infatuation between behavioral psychologist Toby Curtis (Eddie Kaye Thomas) and mechanical engineer Happy Quinn (Jaydn Wong). However, tension between the two reached an all-time high after Toby took a sleeping pill and missed their first dinner date. "Toby is a dog with a bone when it comes to Happy, so he is not going to give up," Santora says. "Deep down, Happy has acknowledged that he's her best friend, and I believe that she also loves him, but she's been hurt throughout her life, so she's not ready to take that leap."

And with Cabe and Paige MIA, it's up to Toby to take control of Team Scorpion and spearhead Walter's rescue. "I'm wearing a tie for the first time this season," Thomas says. "But it takes more than a tie to lead a group, and supreme brain power only takes you so far."

Toby might have to get used to the leadership role, because even before his car accident, Walter's commitment to Scorpion was being tested. Tech billionaire Richard Elia (Andy Buckley), the father of a young girl the team freed from a Mexican drug cartel earlier this season, has been trying to recruit Walter for a job at his company. Elia finally captured Walter's attention by gifting him that dangerous red Ferrari, tapping into Walter's love of sports cars established in the series' pilot. "Walter needs to go so fast and leave all this static crap behind," Gabel says. "He enables himself to get away from all the clutter that people normally experience. But there's some danger being on the edge constantly."

Indeed, Walter learns that the reality of living on the edge is much more harrowing than he anticipated. Throughout the tense hour, he fights for survival, enduring a life-threatening injury sustained in the crash, the car's engine fire, and a pesky visitor. "There's a crow that's just screwing with Walter through the whole episode," Santora reveals.

The fate of Team Scorpion may lie in the balance, but the future of Scorpion the TV series is clear. After averaging 11 million total viewers this season, the show has already been renewed by CBS and the episode order has increased from 22 to 24. "We're going to continue being an action comedy with a lot of heart and a lot of stakes," Santora says. "We're going to keep the relationships developing and moving forward, but we're not going to lose an iota of what the viewers have come to expect."

The actors have their own requests for Season 2, and for McPhee, that means getting more involved in the action. "I want to sex up the show a little bit," says the American Idol and Smash alum, who is planning an intensive schedule of boot camp and meditation before production begins in July. "Maybe one day—boom—Paige is in a catsuit like Catherine Zeta-Jones in Entrapment. I want Paige to kick some ass."

The ethos of Team Scorpion extends to the off-screen camaraderie between the actors. Gabel and McPhee have been dating since last summer; Thomas and McPhee often carpool to and from work; and McPhee even provided guest vocals on a track by Stidham's band, DRTV, titled "No One Else." "She came in and just shredded," says Stidham, who hopes to release an EP later this year.

Patrick, the senior member of the group, says he feels "blessed" to be a part of a series that has found success so early in its run. "The show ultimately is about how there is a solution to every problem, but these kids bonded quickly, and the chemistry is amazing," he says.

Back on the Griffith Park set, McPhee is spending the morning of her 31st birthday filming a grueling uphill run as Paige races to the scene of the crash. After breaking into a sprint on the fourth take, director Milan Cheylov calls "Cut" and McPhee's expression of concern is replaced with a glowing smile. "Did you all see that hustle?" she asks the producers. "You want to be on my team!" As the cast and crew gather to sing "Happy Birthday," it doesn't take a genius to recognize they all already are.

SCORPION, Season finale, Monday, April 20, 9/8c, CBS

"The case hits close to home because it's one of our own," says Wong (above). "It's a more internal, new sort of chaos." Top: Thomas, McPhee, and Stidham.

A New Day

After last year's online debacle, the Daytime Emmys return to TV.

BY MICHAEL LOGAN

THIS ONE IS for the fans. The 42nd Annual Daytime Emmy Awards—hosted by Tyra Banks and airing on cable channel Pop (formerly TV Guide Network)—will, as always, honor the best in soaps, children's programming, and courtroom, game, talk, and food shows. The glitterati will be out in full selfie-loving force, of course, but the best seats in the house will go to those who usually watch this trophy derby from the couch at home.

"We're giving 150 fans the opportunity to be inside the Daytime Emmy ceremony with their favorite stars—in fact, they'll be sitting right on the stage," says executive producer Michael Levitt (creator of the TV Land Awards). "What's more, one fan will be selected to present an award during the broadcast, alongside a big soap heartthrob." The show will also be peppered with several special awards—voted on by the fans—including Most Shocking Sexcapade, Biggest Wedding Disaster, and Best Bitch Slap.

But soaps won't hog all the attention. "Competition among the morning shows has grown increasingly fierce," Pop president Brad Schwartz says, "and it's an even more hotly contested category because the public is so aware of the ratings war." Longtime rivals NBC's Today and ABC's Good Morning America will go up against CBS Sunday Morning, which won in 2013. Among talk shows, The View, plagued by backstage troubles, was left out of the race this year, replaced by The Wendy Williams Show, which was nominated for the first time in six seasons.

The annual Lifetime Achievement Emmy—always an emotional highlight—goes to Betty White, who seems to pick up a piece of honorary hardware every 10 minutes. "This one will be a lot of fun and very different," promises Levitt. "It will include a round of Betty's favorite game show, Password, played live on stage by a panel of her famous friends."

THE 42ND ANNUAL DAYTIME EMMY AWARDS
Sunday, April 26, 8/7c (5pm/PT), Pop

Lifetime honoree Betty White; nominees The Chew, Wendy Williams, and Today.

NO TIME LIKE Daytime

MARY STUART is so terrific as hausfrau Joanne on Search for Tomorrow that she's nominated for a prime-time Emmy—a first for the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences (NATAS).

A daytime category is added to the prime-time Emmys. But when no one wins, legendary soap scribe AGNES NIXON—then writing for Another World—gripes in the New York Times that the awards are a "fiasco."

1972

THE DOCTORS becomes the first daytime program to win the gold. The next year, NATAS creates the Daytime Emmys.

"I was tired of playing Dad and didn't want to play Grandpa," says Geary of his offer to quit General Hospital.

NOMINEE SPOTLIGHT: Anthony Geary

SHALL WE JUST rename it the Tony Award? General Hospital icon Anthony Geary has already won seven Emmys as Outstanding Lead Actor—an academy record—and he's widely considered the front-runner for this year's prize, thanks to his dazzling one-two sucker punch as Luke Spencer and his demonic doppelgänger, Fluke. It's a safe bet Geary will be back again as a nominee in 2016, after the recent revelation that Luke and Fluke are one and the same—a freaky case of dissociative identity disorder triggered in Luke's youth when he murdered his parents and then tried to bury the memory. So where does Luke—and Geary—go from here? Can this sensational storyline be topped? Or should the beloved actor get out while the gettin's good?

"This is an awfully great wrap-up for Luke," concedes Geary, who joined GH in 1978. "My contract is up this year and—believe it or not—at this stage of my life, I have other things I'd like to do. I don't need any more attention. But if the work remains interesting, I can be seduced."

Geary, who flees Los Angeles several months a year for his second home in Amsterdam, says he had grown so disinterested in his role last spring that he asked executive producer Frank Valentini to kill Luke off. "Nobody really dies in Port Charles, and I was willing to sacrifice my character, maybe even to suicide, which no one ever has the balls to do on a soap," Geary says. "I would have loved it. The darker the better for me."

Valentini nixed the idea, going instead with the Luke/Fluke saga. But Geary says he's still up for that historical—and shockingly permanent—farewell: "I've always said that there isn't anyone who can kill Luke Spencer...except himself."

The Reel Deal

IF YOU DON'T like the way the soap Emmys turn out, don't think it's because the voters are tasteless, clueless morons. This is what you need to know: The judges do not base their decisions on a star's entire year's worth of work. In fact, the first round of voting is based on only four minutes per actor—and who doesn't have four good minutes out of 52 weeks? Those actors who make the pre-nomination list then pick one episode to submit to the judges (two for the half-hour The Bold and the Beautiful), and sometimes those choices are questionable, if not disastrous.

To help everyone understand the system better, Pop has posted all of the acting nominees' reels on the network's website (PopTV.com). Says Pop's Schwartz, "It's a terrific way for the fans to get in on the process."

MARY FICKETT becomes the first daytime performer to win an Emmy, for her role as All My Children's impassioned antiwar mom, Ruth Martin.

1973

Just what the doctor ordered. MACDONALD CAREY is the first actor to take the prize, thanks to his work as Days of Our Lives' trusty medic Tom Horton. He repeats in 1975.

1974

JUDITH LIGHT scores for her scorching witness-stand meltdown on One Life to Live. Many still regard it as the greatest acting moment in soaps.

1980

He's no fluke! ANTHONY GEARY nabs the first of his seven Emmys playing the mop-topped bad boy of General Hospital just months after the Nielsen-busting wedding of Luke and Laura. He won't win again for 17 years.

NBC refuses to air the awards, claiming the ratings have been lousy. The following year, the network refuses to participate altogether, citing sloppy balloting and midstream rule changes. Winners are prematurely published in the New York Post.

Daytime Emmys Battle Royal

Soap divas work themselves into a lather on the new reality series Queens of Drama.

COME FOR THE awards, stay for the catfights. Immediately following the Daytime Emmys, Pop will air the first two episodes of its new reality series Queens of Drama, starring a sextet of current and former suds sirens—Donna Mills (Knots Landing), Vanessa Marcil (General Hospital), Lindsay Hartley (All My Children), Chrystee Pharris (Passions), Crystal Hunt (One Life to Live), and Hunter Tylo (The Bold and the Beautiful). Their goal is to write themselves a drama series and pitch it to the networks. But first they have to lay down their pitchforks. Mills and Marcil gave us a preview.

DONNA MILLS

Things quickly get cutthroat in this series. Is the conflict among the actresses real? Semireal? Fiction with a whiff of reality? It's a hybrid, and I was very careful with the producers, because there were times when they pushed me to be a major bitch. I said, "No, I won't do that." I can be headstrong, take-charge, a little pushy, but I don't think I'm bitchy and I didn't want that to come across.

At one point, Joan Collins drops in and it's like Alexis Carrington and Abby Ewing are sitting down to lunch. Was it your intention to give us an '80s fangasm? They weren't even sure they could get Joan, but it ended up being a blast. That era still means so much to people. People couldn't wait for Thursday night and the next episode of Knots Landing. Your friends came over. It was an event! Now you can hole up in your closet by yourself over a weekend and watch three seasons of House of Cards. It's not as exciting.

This is a big night for you! You're also nominated for a Daytime Emmy in the new guest-performer category as that badass General Hospital matron Madeline Reeves. Isn't this a career first? I have never been nominated for anything ever, and I'm shocked it happened this time. The people at GH called and said, "Which episode did you like best? We want to submit you for the Emmys." And I said, "Oh, no, no, no. Please don't do it." But they did. I'm thrilled, though. My first few days on the soap, I was like a deer in the headlights because it was all so fast and frantic. I didn't know if I'd survive. [Laughs] But I guess I got the hang of it.

VANESSA MARCIL

We've seen three episodes and you six gals are still fighting over who's in charge. Will anyone come up with an actual idea for this series that you all claim you want to create?

We do get around to it, and it's a really exciting factor to the show, but who should be boss is a big source of conflict. Others didn't agree, but I thought it should be Donna. She's produced before. She's decades older than a lot of us. I grew up in a time when you respected the legends. You get so mad during one production meeting that you take a hike. What triggered that? [Laughs] The producers told me to! I think most viewers know that reality shows are pretty much scripted. Anyway, we all ended up having a mad love affair with each other. Well, there is one person I just couldn't deal with. Being a gossipy mean girl is not my thing.

This isn't your only dip into reality TV at the moment. What's up with this Mexican cooking-show pilot—Vanessa's Taco—you're shooting down in Texas? It's a show about food, family, and forgiveness. I hadn't seen or spoken to my father and a lot of my family in almost 20 years, after some really unforgivable stuff went down. I had been a bullheaded a--hole for a really long time, so it was a very big deal for me to forgive him. Now we're opening two restaurants together—one in Texas, one in California. That's my life. I really hated being on Beverly Hills, 90210 with all my heart. But I met my son's baby daddy [Brian Austin Green] there, and because of that, I have the most amazing child. Even things that suck can lead to something wonderful.

QUEENS OF DRAMA, Series premiere Sunday, April 26, 10/9c, Pop

1999

Our long national nightmare is over. All My Children's SUSAN LUCCI triumphs on her 19th try! The following year, Emmy ratings dive.

Enough already. After seven wins, OPRAH WINFREY withdraws herself from the Daytime Emmys. Eleven years later, so does Ellen DeGeneres.

Disorder in the court! JUDGE JUDY finally wins outstanding legal/courtroom program after 15 nominations. She doesn't show up.

NATAS promotes its move to the Internet as "a milestone." More like a gallstone. Red-carpet hosts make racist, sexist comments. Host Kathy Griffin rudely cuts off The Young and the Restless producer Jill Phelps as she accepts best-soap award.

THE GUIDE

WHAT'S WORTH
WATCHING

April 20–May 3, 2015

Matt Roush's Top 10 Must-See Shows

1. Veep

Sundays, 10:30/9:30c, HBO

Talk about your flimsy, but funny, house of cards. Bumped up to president in this blistering satire's fourth season, Selina Meyer (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) can barely disguise her panic, even at the White House Easter Egg Roll. As she's surrounded by inept sycophants and cutthroats, who can blame her?

2. The Casual Vacancy

Wednesday–Thursday, April 29–30, 9/8c, HBO

Unearthing sordid personal skeletons while revealing class and social schisms in a seemingly bucolic English village, this tragicomic BBC/HBO adaptation of J.K. Rowling's first adult novel (airing three hours over two nights) features a splendid cast, including Rory Kinnear and Michael Gambon. They represent opposing forces battling over the soul of the town, a fight that becomes queasily personal when dirty secrets get leaked online.

3. The Flash

Tuesday, April 21, 8/7c, The CW

Who is Harrison Wells? The tortuous mystery surrounding the not-so-good doctor (Tom Cavanagh, nicely playing against type) prompts another crossover to the world of Arrow, with Cisco (Carlos Valdes, background) and Joe (Jesse L. Martin) heading to Starling City seeking answers.

4. The Middle

Wednesday, April 22, 8/7c, ABC

Listen closely for an ottoman joke—a call-back to the opening of the classic The Dick Van Dyke Show—when comedy legend Dick Van Dyke (above right), in a rare return to TV, visits and charms the Hecks as Dutch, the estranged brother of Frankie's dad, Tag (brother Jerry Van Dyke).

5. The Americans

Wednesday, April 22, 10/9c, FX

As the third season of this riveting spy thriller wraps, attention must be paid to Keri Russell, so terrific as a Mata Hari who's also a deeply conflicted mom.

7. Mom

Thursday, April 30, 9:30/8:30c, CBS

The hard knocks rarely stop on this relevant sitcom, ending a strong season with Christy (Anna Faris) celebrating her second year of sobriety but turning on her mother, Bonnie (Allison Janney), whose relapse has put their relationship on the rocks.

8. Last Days in Vietnam

Tuesday, April 28, 9/8c, PBS
(check local listings)

American Experience presents Rory Kennedy's powerful, Oscar-nominated documentary marking the 40th anniversary of the chaotic fall of Saigon, relived in all its wrenching human, political, and military aspects.

6. Louie

Thursday, April 23, 10:30/9:30c, FX

In one of his most harrowing misadventures to date, Louie (Louis C.K., near left) is smotheringly befriended by an aggravating cop acquaintance (Michael Rapaport, powerful in his needy, lonely pathos). When Louie tries to lay down the law to this creep, a fateful twist turns an unhappy night on the town into a nightmare.

9. Broadchurch

Wednesday, April 22, 10/9c, BBC America

The verdict is in on what a judge calls "an extremely difficult and distressing case," but that's just the beginning of an emotionally overwhelming season climax, during which a second crime is solved and no one emerges unscathed.

10. Scandal

Thursday, April 23, 9/8c, ABC

Olivia Pope commands most of the spotlight, but this guilty pleasure wouldn't be nearly as entertaining without the wacky machinations of ambitious First Lady Mellie Grant (Bellamy Young). Once derided as "Smelly Mellie," she may become known as "Mopey Mellie" after the public turns on her, threatening her political future.

Who Actually Dunnit

CASTLE 10/9c, ABC

One of Castle's greatest lingering mysteries—who abducted Castle (Nathan Fillion) in last year's finale and why?—will finally be solved tonight. While fans have been clamoring for answers, executive producer David Amann reveals that the best-selling crime novelist would rather remain oblivious. “Initially, he'd prefer not to get into it,” Amann says of Castle, who has no memory of the two months he went missing. “Things are going well [in his life], so why revisit something he supposedly was determined to forget in the first place? He thinks nothing good can come from that.”

But when Castle starts having recurring dreams that may hold clues to his disappearance, his wife, Beckett (Stana Katic), encourages him to see the therapist who helped her recover from PTSD. “The dreams become disruptive to his life,” Amann says. “So it's a question of trying to interpret what these images mean. Are they literal recollections, or do they symbolize something?”

The truth Castle ultimately uncovers results in a story the show's writers have been itching to tell since Castle disappeared after a car crash on what was supposed to be his wedding day. “When we did that Season 6 finale, we had in our minds who was behind all this,” Amann says. And though he's keeping that intel to himself for now, he is willing to say that at least one suspect can be ruled out: Castle's spy father (James Brolin). “Our primary goal was to deliver something that was satisfying for the audience,” Amann teases, “and we think we've done that.”

The outcome doesn't seem too dire since, next week, Castle is already back to investigating other people's misfortunes—though not with his usual partner, Beckett. “Castle and his daughter, Alexis [Molly C. Quinn], take a trip together,” says Amann. “They're on a flight to London for a book function of his, and along the way, the air marshal disappears, so they try to figure out what happened.” —Shawna Malcom “Beckett is there to support Castle in finding the truth,” executive producer Amann says.

DEAD ON
DEADBEAT Hulu

STREAM
IT!

THE SECOND SEASON of the supernatural comedy Deadbeat finds stoner medium Kevin Pacalioğlu (Tyler Labine) confronting a new batch of eccentric spirits while trying to maintain his relationship with ghost roommate—and love interest—Sue (Lucy DeVito). “We're trying to figure out how we can be intimate even though she's dead,” Labine says with a laugh. “There are some really awkward bedroom moments.”

Kevin also struggles to keep his job on track after phony medium Camomile White (Cat Deeley) begins to blackmail him. “He went from wanting to get in her pants to hating her and wanting to light her pants on fire,” he says.

Deadbeat's sophomore season includes guest stars Danny DeVito (Lucy's dad), Zachary Levi, and James Franco, who plays an infamous '80s-era flasher known as Johnny Penis. “James is an old buddy of mine,” Labine says, “so a lot of his craziness goes unnoticed by me! But whenever he's on camera, he just explodes.” —Rob Moynihan

Forever's End

FOREVER 10/9c, ABC

FOR A HOTSHOT NYC detective, Forever's Jo Martinez—played by Alana de la Garza (Law & Order, CSI: Miami)—sure doesn't catch on too quick. The poor gal has spent the better part of Season 1 standing by, oblivious, as her colleague-slash-crush—medical examiner Henry Morgan (Ioan Gruffudd), who's mysteriously immortal—repeatedly evades death all while secretly pining away for his long-lost wife, Abigail (Mackenzie Mauzy). But that could change as the two-part finale kicks off tonight (the second half airs May 5). Here, de la Garza cracks the case. —Ingela Ratledge

This week, Henry finds out what happened to Abigail. Does that clear the path for a romance with Jo? It's important for him to find peace with that relationship, but I don't know if it means he and Jo are suddenly going to be a couple and run off into the sunset. If it were up to me, they wouldn't get together until Season 20, because I love the chase!

Jo has watched Henry continually throw himself into the line of fire and survive.

Why is she so slow on the uptake? I think she's known the whole time that he's not telling her something. She's a smart cop, but she's looked past it for the sake of their friendship. That's what is really fun about this finale: We're finally going to see Jo go, "Enough! Lay it on the line, dude!" I'm excited to see her demand the truth.

As of press time, Forever's fate was still undecided. If it doesn't come back for a second season, will fans get what they need from this episode? There's so much closure in it—on the Abigail story, Henry's history, and between Henry and his nemesis Adam [Burn Gorman]. But at the same time, the finale raises the stakes and brings new challenges, so it does a beautiful job of preparing for Season 2. I really hope we get picked up, because this is such a smart, well-done show. Even if I weren't on it, I'd watch it!

Hell's Kitchen

Guest judge alert!

8/7c, Fox Cheers' John Ratzenberger passes judgment on the contestants' pairings of foodstuffs with various beers, wines, and liquors.

Deadliest Catch 9/8c,

Discovery An extra $15 million allowance on crab has the whole fleet in a frenzy, causing the Time Bandit and the Wizard to put aside a decade-old rivalry in hopes of cashing in. Nothing like a big pile of money to bring people together.

iZombie 9/8c, The CW

Liv noshes on a dead hacker's brain and comes down with a terrible case of agoraphobia. On the plus side, she's now an ace gamer.

Building Wild

Season finale

10/9c, National Geographic The Cabin Kings have to create a mountaintop getaway for a man who loves demolition derbies and wants a "convertible" bedroom that somehow slides out from the second floor into the open air.

Chicago Fire 10/9c, NBC

Some parts of tonight's episode are heavy: A horrifying car wreck forces the team to make difficult decisions. And some are decidedly lighter, like the storyline about Casey's strip-club renovation.

Your Family or Mine

10/9c, TBS Tossing away any items from your sons' childhoods is just asking for trouble, so Ricky really should have foreseen this fight over Oliver and Jason's favorite old couch.

The Empire Strikes

THE AMERICANS Season finale, 10/9c, FX

March 8, 1983, is the day President Ronald Reagan dubbed the Soviet Union an “evil empire” and escalated the Cold War. “March 8, 1983” is also the title of tonight’s twisty season finale of The Americans. The drama’s central spies, Philip Jennings (Matthew Rhys) and wife Elizabeth (Keri Russell), may live in Reagan-era America, but their hearts belong to the USSR.

Still, executive producer Joe Weisberg says, the two are beginning to show “growing cracks in their [loyalty]. Philip in particular is not comfortable with all he is called upon to do.” (One example: being urged to have sex with a 15-year-old whose father is the head of the covert CIA Afghanistan group.)

And the recent seismic changes in the Jenningses’ personal lives could not only expand those cracks but threaten to bust their marriage wide open. The couple’s biggest source of discord is how to handle teen daughter Paige (Holly Taylor) since she forced them to reveal their true identities. Elizabeth has been determined to stay true to her cause and start training Paige to become a spy, while Philip is adamantly opposed. Despite some fans’ fears and/or wishes, one thing is certain, Weisberg promises: “Philip and Elizabeth would never kill their child to keep her quiet. Not even the KGB is that insidious.”

There are no such guarantees, however, for Philip’s unwitting accomplice, FBI secretary Martha (Alison Wright), the other woman he married (using the alias Clark Westerfeld). Now that he’s confessed to her that he’s not a government employee, “Martha has had to face up to some of the things she’s willfully denied since she’s been with the man she calls Clark,” says Weisberg. “She’ll have to make a leap of consciousness, which will change everything for them.”

That is the major theme of the season finale—spy-vs.-spy drama be damned—according to fellow executive producer Joel Fields. “We really look at not only where these characters are,” he says, “but how their evolution as characters affects their relationships.” —Ileane Rudolph

PRANCE REVOLUTION

THE PRANCING ELITES PROJECT Series premiere, 10/9c, Oxygen

SO, THEY THINK they can prance! Oxygen’s new docuseries The Prancing Elites Project follows five fearless best friends who have formed a gender-nonconforming African-American dance troupe. (Their specialty: J-Setting, the style of movement featured in Beyoncé’s “Single Ladies” video.) And did we mention they’re from Mobile, Alabama? “These guys are unlike anyone else,” says Rod Aissa, the network’s executive vice president of original programming and development. “To find each other—and this shared passion—where they’re from? It’s so unlikely.”

The 12 episodes will follow the pals as they struggle to hone their craft, book paying gigs, and finesse their way onto stodgy parade routes. “They face many obstacles, but they’re convinced it will all turn out OK,” Aissa says. “They’re underdogs—but they’re also sort of super-heroes.” —Ingela Ratledge

The Prancing Elites

FOLEY, ARTIST

SCANDAL 9/8c, ABC

"Jake really loves her and is willing to give up everything for her," Foley says of Washington's Pope (inset).

AS OFT-SHIRTLESS ASSASSIN Jake Ballard, Scott Foley has indulged in his share of scandalous behavior, from spying on sometime-girlfriend Olivia Pope (Kerry Washington) to committing murder. But these days on Scandal, he's wearing the white hat as he works with Olivia, her band of gladiators, and attorney general David Rosen (Josh Malina) to take down the nefarious black-ops agency B613—a mission that leads to a particularly bloody twist tonight. Here, the former

Felicity star, who's married to actress Marika Dominczyk, talks about the perils of working on Shonda Rhimes's unpredictable hit, why Jake just can't quit Olivia, and the reason he'd never, ever want to play Noel Crane again. —Shawna Malcom

Taking down B613 is turning out to be dangerous business. Is anyone safe? Every single person who's dealing with B613 is in grave danger. Shonda loves [the actors], but we're like pawns on this chessboard, and she's playing a masterful game. As an audience member, you never know who's safe, and as a cast member, you never know if you're safe. I put my three kids to bed every night thinking, "Man, thank God I've got this job. I hope I have it tomorrow."

She wouldn't really kill off Jake, would she? Who would she write all those shirtless scenes for? Tony Goldwyn [who plays President Fitzgerald Grant]! Or, have you seen Olivia's new love interest, Russell [Brian White]? He could take his shirt off all day long and I'd watch.

Have you gotten used to never knowing what kind of curveballs Shonda is going to throw at you? No! [Laughs]

But there's a certain amount of excitement to not knowing what's going to happen. And not just episode to episode. When we sit down at a table read, we all have to open the script at the same time. I can't skim through and look at the last page. Shonda's very strict.

What would happen if somebody did?

Josh Malina used to be known for sneaking a glance at the last page every time, and at the final table read last season, Shonda made a fake script for him. On the last page it said, "David bleeds out from this wound to his neck." I was sitting next to him, and he turned to me and said, "I die at the end." There was this moment of pure terror on his face. That's what Shonda will do to you.

When you joined the show in Season 2, fans weren't happy that Jake was coming between Olivia and Fitz. Do you feel as if you've finally won them over? There's a certain very dedicated segment of viewers who believe Fitz and Olivia should be together and that that's what the show is about. Unfortunately, they're never going to have their minds changed. I now have some just-as-vocal proponents, though, so I'm pleased with the ratio of Jake-haters and Jake-likers.

Why do you think Jake continues to wait around for Olivia when he could surely find another woman? I think

"Every night I think, 'Man, thank God I've got this job. I hope I have it tomorrow.'"

Jake's found a lot of other women in the past. But when he found Olivia, he just knew. I met my wife and I just knew. And I think Jake [has decided] he'll be patient and wait until Olivia knows, too.

A lot of classic TV series have been or are being resurrected, from Arrested Development on Netflix to The X-Files on Fox. Would you want to see Felicity revived? Never. And I'll tell you why: What made the show special was the age of the characters and the time they were living [through]—college, the unknown, trying to find yourself. You couldn't do that again with those particular characters.

What about reuniting the cast on, say, The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon the way the cast of Saved by the Bell did?

That I'd love to do! I saw Scott Speedman [who played Felicity's Ben Covington] for the first time in years at a pre-Oscar party. He came over and I gave him a big hug and it was, "Hey, how are you doing? I miss you. Are you good?" Scotty and I are such different people—as different as Noel and Ben were—but we have such great respect for each other. So I'd love to get everybody back together again [for a] sit-down.

The Scandal cast is famous for live-tweeting the show with fans every Thursday. How do you manage to do that with three young kids at home?

I piss my wife off—that's how. [Laughs] Look, I'm really lucky. I have a 5-year-old daughter, an almost-3-year-old son, and a 4-month-old son. It's chaotic. Between diapers, poop, cereal, princesses, and Superman capes, my house is crazy. So coming to work and killing people is sort of my therapy.

This week, Odelle is caught between her terrorist captors and Osela's mercenary henchmen.

THE ODYSSEY OF ANNA

AMERICAN ODYSSEY Sunday, 10/9c, NBC

ON AMERICAN ODYSSEY, Anna Friel's Sgt. Odelle Ballard is one of three characters caught up in a dangerous international conspiracy. However, unlike her costars Peter Facinelli and Jake Robinson, who filmed their roles in New York City, the 38-year-old British actress was on her own journey, working in Morocco. "I didn't meet Peter," she says, "until the red carpet at American Odyssey's premiere!" —Ileane Rudolph

After your charming stint on Pushing Daisies, you went back to your native U.K. Did you hate American TV? I love American TV! I was offered about 40 different pilots, but nothing was as incredibly special as Daisies. I went back to England to do the stage version of Breakfast at Tiffany's, then stayed because my daughter, Gracie [with her ex-boyfriend, actor David Thewlis], was in school there. I said yes to a Showtime pilot called The Vatican from Ridley Scott, but it wasn't picked up. Why did you choose American Odyssey for your return? North Africa is much closer to London than New York or Los Angeles, plus Odelle is an amazingly strong female character. I also loved that I'd have to learn Arabic; my father is a linguist and I already speak French. It's a really physical role. How did you prep to play a U.S. soldier who goes through hell in various African locales to get home to her family? [Laughs] They told me I would be tortured in every single imaginable way! So for months I trained daily with a former soldier and ate every two hours to put on muscle. I even began running, which I always hated. I wound up tearing six ligaments, getting a corneal abrasion, throwing my back out, and dislocating my shoulder. It was grueling, but it's toughened me up. In this week's episode, things are looking bleak for Odelle, who's a captive of the Ansar Dine terrorist group. She's wily and smart, so she tells the leader that they can help each other, because she can get him a flash drive with valuable information about the American government. But she is starting to realize how alone she is, that the American military and the government want her dead. Odelle is certainly good at escaping from peril! In the words of Shakespeare, "Though she be but little, she is fierce!"

"They said they were flying me to Hawaii for 10 days. End of negotiation," says White (far right) of teaming up with Shore (left) and Farley (center).

Hawaiian Hangover

HAWAII FIVE-O Friday, 9/8c, CBS

So much for getting lei'd on spring break. This week on Hawaii Five-O, a group of married, fortysomething pals from Ohio—played by guest stars Pauly Shore (Encino Man), Jaleel White (Family Matters), and Kevin Farley (The Waterboy)—attempt to relive their glory days with a wild, womanizing vacation to Oahu. But the party is over when the trio wakes up after an epic bender to find a dead woman in their hotel room—and no memory of how she got there. "When you first see them, Pauly has half of his hair burned off, Jaleel has a black eye, and Farley is wearing a bikini top," says executive producer Peter Lenkov. "These guys aren't the brightest bulbs."

The Five-O task force works the case by—what else?—retracing the knuckleheads' moves, one debauchorous step at a time.

"Normally we have comedy as one ingredient in our show, but this episode is funny from beginning to end," Lenkov says of the Hangover homage. That's thanks in no small part to the inspired stunt casting. "Apparently, the people who saw us shooting assumed we were doing some kind of reality show."

Hey, don't rule it out: Although Shore, White, and Farley had only briefly crossed paths prior to this gig, their willingness to get into character while on location made them fast friends. "After filming, we'd always meet down at the bar at the Sheraton," says Shore. Recalls White, "We took turns buying each other drinks—that just happens in Hawaii." Still, there was one obstacle that kept life from imitating art. "The hotel bar closed at 11pm," says Farley. "So that was too bad." —Ingela Ratledge

FRIDAY

Spring Baking Championship

Series premiere

9/8c, Food Network

This new competition, hosted by Bobby Deen (Paula's son), features seasonally themed bake-offs to go along with big events like Mother's Day, Memorial Day, and weddings.

Happyish

Series premiere

9:30/8:30c, Showtime

Don't worry, be happy? That's not so easy for 44-year-old advertising creative director Thom Payne (Steve Coogan, who took over for the late Philip Seymour Hoffman). As the comedy begins, Thom feels the pressure to rebrand himself after his agency hires Swedish newcomers to alter the company's image.

The Hardy Girl

THE FOLLOWING 9/8c, Fox

"A lot of things have been building to this episode," Stroup says.

IT'S A LONG way from 90210 to The Following, but Jessica Stroup has nailed the transition from soap teen to tough FBI special agent Max Hardy. As one third of Team Hardy, the self-confessed tomboy from South Carolina brings a mix of smarts and badass sass to her role, which is going to come in handy as the long-awaited execution of psycho killer Joe Carroll (James Purefoy) inches even closer tonight. —Damian Holbrook

As if this show wasn't creepy enough, now Max's boyfriend, Tom (Gbenga Akinagbe), has gone all weird and is spying on her after finding out she slept with partner Mike (Shawn Ashmore). Right? That character took a real turn! [Laughs] I don't think Tom was ever a bad guy, but he was put in a position where he was shocked and disgusted, so now he has a computer that's this crazy portal into her apartment and her private life. And he's going to use that to get her back, making it even creepier. And how awkward was filming that love scene with Shawn? What are you talking about? I loved it! Shawn is beautiful! I was quite happy that day because we had to do numerous takes. The only awkward part was when his beautiful wife was talking me through how to make him feel comfortable. [Laughs]

Fox is calling this week's Joe-Ryan situation "not to be missed." It's one of the best episodes of the whole season. I love seeing James Purefoy and Kevin Bacon [who plays FBI agent Ryan Hardy] together. Their chemistry is amazing, and I think fans who have been around since Season 1 will love seeing them together again. There's fun stuff that happens at the prison. Mike and Max are right there on Ryan's heels, so we are present for all the drama that goes down.

The show is not afraid to kill off regulars. Does it still worry you that you could get that script? Absolutely. There's always that fear. Every single episode, I think, "OK, what can I do to bribe [executive producer] Marcos Siega?" You never want to answer one of his calls. It's usually not a good thing! [Laughs]

WAR ROOM

DICK CAVETT'S VIETNAM
10/9c, PBS (check local listings)

"The war in Vietnam was a dumb, ham-fisted catastrophe," says Dick Cavett, "but it sure led to some smart discussion." And a lot of it happened on Cavett's early-'70s late-night talk show, now the subject of a PBS special, Dick Cavett's Vietnam. Included are big moments from Cavett's Q&As with top politicians of the time (including Barry Goldwater, Hubert Humphrey, and Edmund Muskie). But Hollywood weighed in, too. "One minute, a star would be regaling us with a funny story about his mother-in-law; the next, he'd jump to Vietnam," Cavett recalls. "You could not keep the topic out of the conversation."

Cavett

Cavett got two cents—and then some—from the likes of Groucho Marx, Jane Fonda, and Warren Beatty. "Show folk were considered know-nothings who couldn't do anything but pretend to be other people," Cavett says. "Truth is, most of the stars were more eloquent and intelligent than our lawmakers." —Michael Logan

Foster's Bananas?

YOUNGER 10/9c, TV Land

NOT EVEN LUCY Ricardo would have had the nerve to try this stunt. On Younger, the new sitcom from Sex and the City's Darren Star, two-time Tony winner Sutton Foster plays Liza Miller, a broke, 40-year-old single mom who claims to be 15 years younger in order to land a job at a Manhattan publishing house. Foster tells us what it's like to live a lie. —Michael Logan

Did you worry whether you could pull off this kooky caper? Not only does Liza need to look like she's in her mid-twenties, but so do you. The whole show pivots on it! At first I was like, "Can I really do this?" But I was much more confident once we started playing around with the hair and wardrobe. It wasn't until I looked at the first episode—squeamishly, through my fingers—that I thought, "Yes, this is gonna work!" I took a chance because it's such an amazing opportunity. [Laughs] Who wouldn't want to vicariously relive their twenties in a fake TV way?

Liza is deliciously clueless when it comes to current pop culture. What's it like saying lines like "Who's Lena Dunham?" I so love that stuff. Even after my character starts to get a little more hip to what the cool kids are up to, she's always in danger of getting busted. She's woven this web of deceit, and the truth will hurt a lot of people, especially her new boyfriend, Josh [Nico Tortorella]. After years in a dead marriage, Liza has found love and great sex. It's so wrong, but it feels too good to give up.

How are you dealing with aging in this youth-obsessed world? I had just turned 40 and was coming to terms with that when we started the series, so this is a mirror of my own life. But I'm feeling very grateful for the years I've had. In your twenties, you're still flopping around trying to figure things out. It's all about firsts—first job, first heartbreak, first major f---ups. Thank you, done it. Now I revel in the fact that I handle things better, have stronger relationships, better perspective, wiser priorities. I wouldn't trade any of that.

Foster's previous series was ABC Family's Bunheads.

The Day the '60s Died

8/7c, PBS (check local listings at pbs.org) This documentary chronicles the 1970 shooting of four unarmed protesters at Kent State University by the Ohio National Guard, an event that ignited nationwide demonstrations opposing President Richard Nixon's decision to send American troops into Cambodia.

Marvel's Avengers Assemble

8:30/7:30c, Disney XD Before watching their 3-D live-action counterparts kick robotic butt in Avengers: Age of Ultron this weekend, you can see the 2-D cartoon versions of Captain America, Iron Man, and the other Avengers attempt to save the world from Ultron.

One Big Happy

9:30/8:30c, NBC Prudence has been keeping a secret so bad it drives Luke out of the house, and possibly her life, which would be troubling enough even if her immigration status didn't depend on their marriage.

Blight on the Town

To advance his own political agenda, council parish leader Howard (Gambon) forces his simpering son to run for election.

THE CASUAL VACANCY
8/7c, HBO

Listen up, kiddies—we're not at Hogwarts anymore. HBO's new three-part miniseries The Casual Vacancy, adapted from the 2012 for-adult-eyes-only novel by Harry Potter mastermind J.K. Rowling, depicts a microcosm that's about as purposefully devoid of magic as possible. The setting: Pagford, England, a picturesque countryside village brimming with every imaginable flavor of strife. When Barry Fairbrother (Rory Kinnear), an impassioned defender of the underprivileged and an all-around stand-up guy, suffers a sudden brain aneurysm, it leaves an open seat on the local parish council. A nasty three-way election for his spot promptly ensues—along with oodles of other unpleasantness. “Barry’s death sets off a chain of events,” director Jonny Campbell says. “It creates this huge vacuum that exposes the rotten core of a lot of people’s lives.”

Among them: Howard Mollison (Michael Gambon), the corrupt council leader who’s hoping to turn Sweetlove House, a subsidized facility that provides aid to low-income families, into a hotel and spa. That’s especially bad news for Krystal Weedon (Abigail Lawrie), the rebellious teen daughter of a junkie—Barry had taken a special interest in helping her—who now believes that her best hope of escaping her dire circumstances is getting knocked up by a less disadvantaged classmate. “She’s like a 19th-century heroine being tossed around on this sea of change,” Campbell says. “We’re asking the question: Can the sense of good that Barry brought to this community be replaced?”

In a word, no. Pagford sinks deeper into moral and social unrest until, Campbell says, “the characters spiral toward a tragic conclusion.” (And how: Those familiar with the book will know when to start cringing behind the sofa cushions.) If all these Muggle problems sound too realistic to qualify as escapist entertainment, well, then, The Casual Vacancy has fulfilled its destiny. “There are no magic wands in this story, and perhaps that’s the point,” Campbell says. “In life, we don’t have those to get us out of trouble. We need the compassion of others. And that’s what’s so fascinating.” —Ingela Ratledge

Nature: Mystery Monkeys of Shangri-La

8/7c, PBS They’re not monkeying around! This episode of the exploratory series delves into the world of the recently discovered Yunnan snub-nosed monkeys, which survive in the highest altitudes of the Himalayas.

Young & Hungry 8/7c, ABC
Family Gabi and Sofia decide

it’s time to move on to bigger and better things—or maybe just into the bigger apartment across the hall.

Tia Mowry at Home Series premiere

9/8c, Cooking Channel The Sister, Sister and Game actress debuts her new good-eats series tonight. Mowry serves up some of the many dinner recipes she learned from her mom and others. (No word on whether that includes Jackée.)

Ripper Street Season premiere

10/9c, BBC America The Season 3 premiere of the atmospheric British import jumps ahead four years to 1894 and finds the Victorian coppers Reid, Drake, and Jackson reuniting after a locomotive robbery turns into an all-out disaster.

Shipping Wars

10/9c, A&E A Munsters-size load from the classic TV show comes into Marc’s possession, but he needs to ask competitive Jenn for help with it. Elsewhere, Todd and Tamera are forced to get creative while shipping an out-of-this-world lunar lander.

Blue Detective

BACKSTROM Season finale, 9/8c, Fox

It's a family affair on the season finale of Backstrom when the cranky, eponymous detective (Rainn Wilson) returns home to the Wabacooche County Indian reservation to investigate a murder. Backstrom and his team soon discover evidence that leads to a Native American drug-dealing operation, which results in an explosive confrontation between Backstrom and his father, Cooch County Sheriff Blue Backstrom (Robert Forster).

"I've always thought of Backstrom as a story of redemption," says creator and executive producer Hart Hanson. "Facing down his father and seeing that he has support in his life that he's never had before from this motley group of people in the Special Crimes Unit has given Backstrom the impetus he needs to make at least that first step in changing his life."

Backstrom's former fiancée, Amy (Sarah Chalke), also plays a significant role in the tension brewing between father and son.

"Amy once loved Backstrom very much but left him because she couldn't change him," Hanson says. "One of the people who regrets that the most is Blue—he really liked Amy—so maybe that's when he gave up on his son as well. There's a great little triangle there."

As for the future of Backstrom itself, at press time, Fox had not made a decision regarding a second season for the procedural. However, Hanson promises this episode will not leave fans hanging with a cliffhanger or unresolved questions. "If we don't come back for Season 2, which is a possibility, it will still be a satisfying end to the story," he says. "We've all got our fingers crossed and are hoping that the passion of our audience will get us through, but it is by no means a slam dunk." —Rob Moynihan

Bones 8/7c, Fox How's this for a body of work? In honor of the crime procedural's 206th episode, all 206 bones in the human skeleton will be mentioned during the episode.

The Casual Vacancy

8/7c, HBO The three-part drama wraps up with the residents of Pagford preparing for an election that will seal the fate of their Sweetlove House community center.

Mom

Season finale

9/8c, CBS They say mother knows best, but when Roscoe decides he wants to go live with his father, Christy pins all the blame on her mom, Bonnie.

The Vampire Diaries

9/8c, The CW Proving that they've learned absolutely nothing from the fatalities that always happen at Mystic Falls parties, Alaric and Jo brave their bachelor and bachelorette bashes.

The Comedians

10/9c, FX The guys hit their first major snag as partners when the network delays the premiere of The Billy & Josh Show and the two have very different ideas about how to "fix" the series.

Ice Cold Gold

10/9c, Animal Planet The exhausted miners travel to their next destination, an iceberg known as Egi, which has produced much gold in the past. But Eric has a new plan that could tear the team apart.

Louie

10:30/9:30c, FX Following a family tragedy, Louie's brother, Bobby, invites the comic over for an emotional plea that is anything but a laughing matter.

PENNY DREADFUL Season premiere, Sunday, 10/9c, Showtime

THERE MAY BE three people in this marriage—and two of them used to be dead. The supernatural Victorian-era series Penny Dreadful is back for Season 2 with young Frankenstein (Harry Treadaway) determined to reanimate the deceased hooker Bona (Billie Piper) so that his first-born creature, Caliban (Rory Kinnear), will have a wife. But there's a snag: Frankenstein becomes erotically fixated on Bona's hot, lifeless bod. Will he have the nerve to take Caliban's plaything as his own?

"Frankenstein's intention is to stick to his goal—to give the girl life and then give her away," Treadaway says. "He wants Caliban to access his emotions, experience love, and have a complete life. That's the grand scientific plan. Still, there's no question that the doctor is fascinated with Bona. He's never before been with a woman."

Does Caliban get jealous? Perhaps not, since his eye is already wandering: When the ghastly guy lands a job at a house-of-horror waxworks display, he instantly sparks with the owner's blind daughter.

Also on the love front, look for the never-aging Dorian Gray (Reeve Carney) to take up with Angelique (Jonny Beauchamp), a wildly forward lady-for-hire who packs a surprise—or three—when she strips down for action. Last season, when, out of nowhere, Gray got it on with he-man werewolf Ethan Chandler (Josh Hartnett), fans ate it up.

"I was so happy with the response," says Carney, who first gained fame as Broadway's original Spider-Man. "We dangled a carrot—so to speak—and it really piqued interest. Dorian will try anything to divert himself. You name it, he rushes headlong into it." As does Carney, thanks to advice he got from his great uncle, the late Oscar and Emmy winner Art Carney: "I once asked him about acting, and he said, 'It's simple. You just pretend to be somebody else.' That helps me no matter what crazy stuff Penny Dreadful throws my way." —Michael Logan

No More Lies

SECRETS AND LIES Season finale, Sunday, 9/8c, ABC

At last, the moment of truth! After twists, turns, and red herrings galore, plus more sweaty jogs through the woods than we could possibly count, Secrets and Lies will finally reveal who killed little Tom Murphy when Season 1 signs off. Was it conflicted family man Ben Crawford (Ryan Phillippe), who found Tom's body, or someone else from his not-so-idyllic small town? Executive producer Barbie Kligman identifies a few key clues and offers a preview of what's ahead.

—Ingela Ratledge

1. Remember that blue jacket from the crime scene? Well, it's baaack. During Episode 5, Ben spotted Matt, his autistic teen neighbor, holding the coat worn by the killer. When the garment resurfaces in Episode 9, it brings answers along with it. "It's very important who it belongs to," Kligman teases.

2. Ben will see the light. For the bulk of the season, not even Ben—whose memories of the night of the murder are patchy—has been certain about his own guilt or innocence. Going into Episode 10, however, "Ben knows exactly what happened," Kligman says, "and why he couldn't remember before."

3. There's a rhyme and reason to the murder. "We're not pulling someone out of left field, like, 'The crazy uncle who lived in New York did it!'" says Kligman. "The audience has absolutely met the killer." If you want to beat Detective Cornell (Juliette Lewis) to the solution, says Kligman, meditate on "the theme of families—parents, kids, and the right way to protect the people you love."

4. Speaking of: Yes, the people closest to Ben are totally the shadiest. Since the get-go, Ben's estranged wife, Christy (KaDee Strickland), has been up to something. (Hello, removing her wedding band for a "client" meeting?) "Whether to trust her is a big deal as we approach the end," says Kligman. Teen daughter Natalie (Indiana Evans) will have some 'splainin' to do as well. "She could end up being the most surprising character," Kligman continues, "but the shoe might not drop in the way people are expecting it to." As for Ben's best buddy, Dave (Dan Fogler)? "Just because he shows Ben a well-appreciated display of loyalty in Episode 8 does not mean that he's above reproach. He's still hiding something big."

5. Expect more than one aha moment. Surprise: The actual whodunit is merely a prelude to more action. "Halfway through the finale, you'll find out who killed Tom," Kligman says. "But then you will see something else that transpires on the heels of that. There will be constant momentum up until the final second—and it's completely shocking!"

Ben (Phillippe) will finally remember what happened the night his neighbor Tom was killed.

TECH

The latest in how we watch TV, how we listen to it, and even how we can carry a big screen around with us.

BY MICHAEL FELL

1. Vizio TV E32h-C1
vizio.com $239

Sixty-five-inch screens with 4K resolution selling for upwards of $10,000 may get all the attention, but this budget-priced 32-inch display comes loaded with the latest HD tech. Two million screen pixels form a crystal-clear LED image with impressive contrasts.

2. Sling TV sling.com
$20 per month

Since its February debut, this live-TV service for cord cutters has nearly doubled its available channels. AMC, IFC, History, A&E, and Lifetime among others now join original channels like ESPN and the Food Network. Add-on premiums include Epix and HBO.

4. LG Smart MiniBeam PW800 HD projector
lg.com $599

It's been easy enough to take your TV with you on smartphones and tablets—now you can tote a one-pound, 100-inch screen in your backpack. Just hook it up wirelessly to a live TV, computer, or mobile device and aim it at a wall.

3. Radiant-360 R7 speaker samsung.com $499

It may look like Mork's spaceship, but at 16 inches high, this wireless system takes up as much space as a small side-table lamp and uses a Ring Radiator speaker to push sound 360 degrees around your home theater.

5. PlayStation Vue playstation.com $49 a month

In March, PlayStation launched the superhero drama series Powers, which you could watch on its PS4 gaming console ($399). The company's live-streaming service Vue soon followed with a launch in New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia. It features CBS, Fox, NBC, MTV, and Comedy Central, among 50 other channels.

What's cooking on TV right now.

Where Sweeney goes, suds follow: Her Murder, She Baked love interest is former All My Children heart-throb Cameron Mathison.

After nearly 22 years as troublemaker Sami Brady on Days of Our Lives, Alison Sweeney is finally getting her just desserts: She's starring in a series of Hallmark films based on the best-selling culinary whodunits of Joanne Fluke. First up is Murder, She Baked: A Chocolate Chip Cookie Mystery. It's to die for!

BY MICHAEL LOGAN

What's with you and quaint little towns where there's a murder every other Tuesday?

I know, right? Nothing will ever compare to [Days of Our Lives'] Salem when it comes to crazy crime, but sweet little Lake Eden, Minnesota—the setting for Murder, She Baked—is quite the Kill Capital. My character, Hannah, is an amateur sleuth who runs the Cookie Jar bakery. Her mother is always telling her: "You have to stop finding dead bodies. No man will want you!"

Are you feeling like the new Angela Lansbury? It's so weird that my life has come full circle. When I was little, my mom was obsessed with all the great old crime shows—Murder, She Wrote, Columbo, and especially Perry Mason—and we loved watching them together. So I am ready for this! Next we're doing The Plum Pudding Mystery. There's nothing gross and graphic about these movies. In fact, there's lots of comedy and lighthearted romance. It's the first thing I've done as an actor that I want my kids to watch.

You push some pretty high-calorie confections in this movie—the kind you'd ban on your show The Biggest Loser. Mixed message?

It's terrible! I avoid temptation on the set by telling myself they're not real—just props—and that helps me stay in denial. But I did ask the writers to throw in a fitness message, so Hannah goes on runs to clear her head and solve her crimes. It's all about balance.

You had to quit Days of Our Lives to finally get your first Daytime Emmy nomination this year. [The awards air April 26; see story on page 28.] Had you given up hope? I thought I'd never be invited to the party. In fact, a lot of years I didn't even bother submitting myself. So this is an amazing gift. I'm not nervous about being nominated. I'll be in Canada shooting the Hallmark movie Radio Hype until right before the awards. When I get back, I will have exactly one day to find a dress. [Laughs] That's what makes me nervous.

MURDER, SHE BAKED: A CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE MYSTERY Premieres Saturday May 2, 9/8c, Hallmark Movies & Mysteries

In the Chips

Here is author Fluke's own recipe for a classic cookie treat—with a flaky twist.

CHOCOLATE CHIP CRUNCH COOKIES

Makes 36 cookies

Ingredients

- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 ½ cups unsifted flour
- 2 cups crushed cornflakes
- 1 cup chocolate chips (double if desired)

Instructions

Preheat oven to 375° F (rack in middle position). Grease cookie sheet. Melt butter. Add sugars and stir. Add soda, salt, vanilla, and eggs. Mix well. Add flour and stir. Add cornflakes and chocolate chips. Mix thoroughly. Form dough into 36 walnut-size balls. Place 12 at a time on cookie sheet. Press balls down with floured fork in crisscross pattern. Bake for 10 minutes. Cool 2 minutes on sheet, and then remove to continue cooling on wire rack to assure crispness.

Answers to puzzle of April 6

SUDOKU

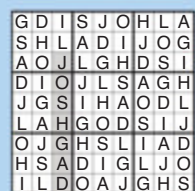

The goal of Sudoku is to fill in every empty box with one of nine letters. Each letter can appear only once in each horizontal row, as well as in every vertical column and in each of the 3x3 grids. Each finished puzzle will contain the spelling of a TV star, character, setting, or show. Last issue's puzzle, about one of the stars of FX's The Comedians, contained the letters A D G H I J L O and S. The finished grid spelled out Josh Gad.

One of the stars of Madam Secretary appears in this issue's puzzle at left. It has the letters A C D E I L M T and Y.

LAST ISSUE'S PUZZLE

LAST ISSUE'S SOLUTION

HOROSCOPE

BY THE ASTROTWINS, TALI AND OPHIRA EDUT

Taurus (April 21–May 21)

No more excuses! Give a long-held dream a chance. It will take some effort—you might have to enroll in a course or set up a crowdfunding campaign. Travel could also figure in. Whatever you want: Think big, do big! IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS THIS WEEK: You're a creature of habit, but this year you'll take the unworn path to discover new places and faces. Cultivate a home base too, so you'll have somewhere cozy to rest between adventures.

Emily Wickersham
APRIL 26, 1984

Gemini (May 22–June 21)

ATTICUS SHAFFER 6/19/1998

Spring-cleaning time! You can keep those Storage Wars treasures, but donate the rest. Open up more space in your calendar by pruning the toxic people from your friend circle. Quality over quantity is your new mantra.

Cancer (June 22–July 23)

LANA PARRILLA 7/15/1977

Break from your go-to hoodie. You may have to exit your shell, but new friends can open doors. Build alliances one-on-one if groups give you the jitters. The next four weeks are prime for creating an online business.

Leo (July 24–Aug. 23)

BILLY GARDELL 8/20/1969

Don't cut corners now. Only hard work—not Don Draper bluster—will help you achieve your goals. Authenticity and loyalty go a long way, too. What's next? A big idea may come to you near April 21.

Virgo (Aug. 24–Sept. 23)

ALEX O'LOUGHLIN 8/24/1976

April showers bring Virgo flowers. You'll blossom big time over the next four weeks. Go see the world, learn a new skill, or take a romantic plunge that upgrades your relationship status.

Libra (Sept. 24–Oct. 23)

EMILY DESCHANEL 10/11/1976

Ready for love? Get back to the search or stoke the embers with your current partner. Remember—it's up to you to choose the recipient of your final rose. Don't let any critic beat louder than the wisdom of your heart.

Scorpio (Oct. 24–Nov. 22)

VANESSA BAYER 11/14/1981

Odd-couple alert. An unlikely attraction bubbles up for love, business, or a creative collaboration. The mood gets muy caliente around April 21. Already paired? Do something together you've never done before.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23–Dec. 21)

ANNA CHLUMSKY 12/3/1980

Your wild ways demand a time-out. Replace them with healthy routines: hiking, meditating, or cooking nutritious meals. It's also time to think about making money. An entrepreneurial idea could bring in cash after April 21.

Capricorn (Dec. 22–Jan. 20)

CARRIE ANN INABA 1/5/1968

Show the judges what you've got! Perform, present, make a winning pitch. But ignore the Simon Cowells; focus on your fans. Love blooms near April 21. Could there be a proposal, pregnancy, or other excitement in your romance novel?

Aquarius (Jan. 21–Feb. 19)

DAMIAN LEWIS 2/11/1971

You, a homebody? For the next four weeks, the answer is absolutely. Recharge your batteries, putz about gardening or decluttering, and spend time with the family. Remember that you can say no to pushy relatives.

Pisces (Feb. 20–March 20)

JOSH GAD 2/23/1981

Oh, who are the people in your neighborhood? Shed winter-hermit ways and reacquaint with the locals. Go for test drives, too: It's an ideal time to upgrade your wheels, but consider eco-friendly options!

Aries (March 21–April 20)

DANNY PINO 4/15/1974

Humble thyself. Practice really does make perfect, so drop any King of the Hill routines and learn something! Don't be afraid to shadow an expert in your field. It could pay dividends by May.

Can He Dig It?

BY DANNY SPIEGEL

When: April 21, 1986

Where: The Lexington Hotel, Chicago

What: Geraldo Rivera attempts to unearth Al Capone's vaults.

IT WAS THE perfect convergence of subject matter, media personality, and hype. When The Mystery of Al Capone's Vaults, hosted by Geraldo Rivera, was broadcast live in 1986, most everyone involved, especially Rivera and executive producers John Joslyn and Doug Llewelyn (from The People's Court), thought there might be cash or treasures (or even bones) buried in the caverns of the Lexington Hotel, the notorious crime boss's former headquarters. But ultimately, it was a bust. And the IRS agent who was on-site to collect on Capone's outstanding tax debt wasn't the only one disappointed.

Llewelyn: John Joslyn and I had a production company in Los Angeles. One day, we were sitting in our office going through the paper, and there was a notice of a supposed vault belonging to Al Capone that had been discovered in a Chicago hotel.

Rivera: I had been fired from ABC. I was the most famous unemployed person in the country. [I was] offered $25,000. I said, "I'll take it if they give me $50,000." It was purely an economic decision [to do the show]. But it sounded like an intriguing idea.

Joslyn: While Doug was working with Geraldo, who was on location for the special's documentary segments, we got a call from the family of Ralph Capone, Al's [deceased] brother, through his attorney. He wanted to know if they could get in the vaults. "No! Can't open it until we do it live on television."

Rivera: I knew that everybody would be watching, including all my colleagues at ABC—the ones I liked and the ones I didn't. I knew it would be huge. I thought I could ride that wave back to a gig. So I had some performance anxiety, but I managed to douse it with my enthusiasm, totally embracing the whole concept.

Joslyn: We pulled on the first wall, where we had pre-cut everything with our saws. Boom! "Ah, s--t, there's another wall!" We thought there was only one wall.

Rivera: I was dismayed. With all the sonic testing we had done, we had banked on the chamber being hollow. I was also conscious of the clock. As we got closer to the end—I'm getting sweaty palms just remembering it—what loomed more profoundly than anything was the prospect of ridicule.

Joslyn: We bring down the second wall of the vault and there's more dirt. And all Geraldo was able to find was a milk bottle from the '30s and a sign that said, "Adams Express Company," both of which I still have to this day.

Rivera: I gathered the workers around me and shared that we were going to go to the Mexican restaurant that was right across from the hotel. I was going to get stinking drunk, and I fulfilled that pledge.

Llewelyn: He went back to his hotel room and was incommunicado. We couldn't get through to him. But overnight, of course, the ratings came in.

Joslyn: Highest-rated show ever in syndication history. So for us there was gold there after all.

Rivera: I look on it with fondness. It made me very vulnerable to many people, [to the point] where they could poke fun at me, but it was almost kind of loving.

Joslyn: It really gave a boost to Geraldo. He went on to have his own talk show and launch his career all over again.

Llewelyn: It has become a running joke. Every now and then I'll be watching some show and somebody will refer to Al Capone's vault. [When] Geraldo was on Glee, they referred to Al Capone's vault. I called my wife and said, "There it goes again!"
